Onward, Up Treacherous Slopes of Everest

Copyright by the British Mt. Everest Committee.

Here is a group of Mount Everest climbers pictured part way up the treacherous sides of the unconquered mountain, whose inviolate peak, reaching 29,002 feet into misty skies, is described as the supreme test of man in a material world. This photograph shows the 1933 climbers in action on the North Col, a trek that ended in failure. Today a small band of veteran climbers have established a new base at Everest, acclimatizing itself for the rigors ahead.

MUSSOLINI SHOWS HITLER HIS ARMY

Fuehrer Views Sample of Fascist Might; Stalin
Problem Comes to Front

ROME, May 6.—(P)—Premier Mussolini today showed Adolf Hitler a sample of the 9,000,000 men which he recently asserted he could mobilize in the event of war.

The tiny part he exhibited—some 30,000 soldiers or one-third of 1 per cent of his total manpower—was itself a war machine bristling with means of mass destruction.

Artillery, tanks, armored cars, poison gas dispensers and flame spreading units passed before the eyes of the Fascist and Nazi leaders for more than two hours with Il Duce proudly pointing to the armed force he created and the Fuehrer showing his admiration.

Boys With Toys.

Men ready for combat, women prepared for work behind the lines and little boys bearing toy rifles as the start of their military training—all a part of Italy's vast war organization—marched in the parade.

Yesterday Mussolini showed Hitler his navy in action. Tomorrow he will show him his air force.

Establishment of a base camp by the 1938 British Mt. Everest expedition and plans for an assault on the 29,002-foot mountain peak, highest in the world and never conquered by man, are described here in a dispatch from the leader of the expedition.

MT. EVEREST BASE CAMP, Tibet, May 6.—(By Courier to Gangtok and Wireless Via London.)—The 1938 British Mt. Everest expedition has established its base camp near the snout of the Rongbuk glacier, 12 miles from the goal of its adventure. The seven members of the climbing party and all of our porters are well.

For some days to come, in this weather-beaten hollow, stores will be mustered and accessibly arranged. Porters and local workers will be acclimatized to their tasks.

PARIS AND LONDON ACT TO ALLEVIATE CZECH WAR PERIL

Quick Effort To Ease
Minority Question and Get Europe From Brink of Conflict To Start.

SEEK TO MODERATE
HENLEIN DEMANDS

Germany and Italy Reported Ready To Move
To Protect Nazi Coup.

LONDON, May 6.—(P)—Great Britain and France decided today to make a quick effort to ease Czechoslovakia's minority trouble and get Europe away from the brink of possible war.

Informed sources said that, without waiting for Adolf Hitler's return from his state visit to Italy, Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, would see Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, acting chancellor, tomorrow in Berlin on behalf of the Democratic allies.

Stripped of diplomatic niceties, the Anglo-French approach would include:

1. A request for German aid in getting Konrad Henlein, Nazi leader in Czechoslovakia, to moderate his demands for that nation's minority of 3,500,000 Germans.

Czechoslovak Concessions.

2. An Anglo-French offer to "advise" the Czechoslovak government to make liberal concessions.

3. A warning that "rough handling" of the minority issue by Germany most certainly would precipitate a war.

It was planned at the same time that British Minister Basil Newton and French Minister Victor Leopold de LaCroix, in Praha, would press the Czechoslovak government to go as far as possible toward meeting Henlein's demands.

(Henlein April 24 submitted an eight-point program in which he called for revision of Czechoslovakia's foreign policy, self-government with Nazi principles for the German minority and other concessions.

Minimum Demands.

(Last Sunday he announced these demands "represent not the maximum but the minimum of what is necessary to solve our national problems" and suggested a plebiscite on the issue.)

Informed sources said Britain would sound out feeling in Warsaw. (There are some 80,000 Poles in Czechoslovakia.) Sir Neville also would see Hitler on his return from Italy.

The Berlin move was seen as the vital one since a peaceable solution of the Czechoslovak problem was felt to depend upon Germany's acceptance of a Henlein settlement within the Czechoslovak constitutional framework.

Italian Pressure.

(In Rome, Mussolini was represented as having promised Hitler to bring all diplomatic pressure possible upon Praha both to grant Henlein's demands and to loosen, if not sever, the Czechoslovak constitutional framework.

Smile of Victory Wreathes Faces of Pay Bill Backers

Acme Telephotos.

A happy moment for backers of the "shelved" wages and hours measure came yesterday as the necessary 218th signature was scrawled on a petition to force the bill from a hostile rules committee. Members swarmed into the well of the house at a signal from Representative Mary Norton, shown seated above. Pictured with Mrs. Norton are, from left to right, Representatives Welch, Daly, Healey and Curley.

BILL TAKES RELIEF FROM ROOSEVELT

Subcommittee Approves
Measure Giving Funds
Directly to Agencies.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(P)—The President's power to choose his own means of spending in the attack on the depression would be sharply restricted by a bill approved by a house appropriations subcommittee today.

The measure contains the administration's new multi-billion dollar program of spending and lending. But for the first time, should the bill become law in its present form, relief money would not go to the President to be apportioned as he desired. It would go directly to the Works Progress Administration and other agencies which actually pay out the cash.

For that reason, Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, in charge of the measure, called it the "best relief bill that ever has been reported."

"It is the only time," he said, "that congress absolutely controls the program from beginning to end."

He added that "this is with the full approval of the President." The legislation is scheduled to start through the house Tuesday. It provides:

1. For the WPA works-relief program: $1,250,000,000, to last until next January 31.

2. For the Public Works Administration: $750,000,000 for grants for locally-sponsored projects; authority to lend $250,000,000 to local sponsors, and the right to use up to $500,000,000 more, from the WPA revolving fund, for loans having no connection with grants.

3. For the Farm Security Administration: $175,000,000 for rehabilitation loans and grants to farmers.

4. For the National Youth Administration: $75,000,000.

5. For post offices and other federal buildings: $25,000,000 appropriation and an authorization for future appropriations of $25,000,000.

The WPA fund could be expended only for certain types of projects. The maximum amounts for each category: $250,000,000 to help white collar workers; $425,000,000 for roads and $575,000,000 for miscellaneous developments.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—The only way you can get any real idea of what a Kentucky Derby might be is to be in Louisville on Derby Day. If you happened to arrive today or yesterday, you will still be in a daze, trying to remember what it is all about.

And then you begin to hear the names that mean a big part of the story—Fighting Fox—Bull Lea—The Chief—Dauber—Lawrin—Menow—and others.

But they will take up only two minutes of the parade that began last Monday—by train and plane and motor—with the last stragglers filing out Sunday.

This 1938 show gives every evidence of being around the top bracket—the day and the night before—the invaders from almost every state—people you haven't seen in 20 years, or 30 years—and well before Derby time at the track your main endeavor will be to try to breathe, or move along a foot or two.

The feature of this Derby is not Fighting Fox or Bull Lea or The Chief or Menow or Dauber. They will have their brief two minutes. It is not the fact that some 75,000 people from all over the country will gather here.

The feature of this Derby is

COUNTY TO PROBE PRISON CAMP FIRE

$15,000 Blaze Destroys Stonewall Dormitory;
Convicts Led to Safety.

Origin of the $15,000 fire which early yesterday swept sleeping quarters of 112 negro prisoners at Stonewall prison camp in the second Fulton camp fire in less than 30 days was being sought yesterday by county commissioners, following conferences with A. A. Clarke, superintendent of public works in charge of county prison camps.

A blaze, which caught in the kitchen of the dormitory and spread rapidly, completely destroyed the U-shaped barracks.

Commissioners yesterday said the kitchen was on the verge of collapse before the blaze was discovered.

Origin Undetermined.

Origin of the fire was undetermined. Warden Clarke said plans were being formulated for an investigation and that the commission would hold conferences during the next few days.

At the camp, prison officials said the blaze could have started from the stove, where pots of beans were cooking for the convicts' meals yesterday. Another official reported the blaze could have originated from a hot motor in the refrigeration plant under the porch of the dormitory.

The fire, discovered about 2 o'clock in the morning by guards, burned about two hours but did not damage the commissary, garages, or other office buildings.

DIXIE OPPONENTS ADMIT MEASURE WILL BE PASSED

Vote Assured on May 23;
Southerners Prepare To Continue Fight in Senate; Filibuster in Sight.

PEPPER'S VICTORY
BRINGS 'CONVERTS'

Ramspeck Congratulates
Mrs. Norton; Snell Dubs
Action a 'Hippodrome.'

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(UP) President Roosevelt tonight won his fight for a house vote on the wages-hours bill when 218 members swarmed to the well of the chamber in a tumultuous session and signed a petition dynamiting the measure from the hostile rules committee onto the floor.

The maneuver was accomplished in the unprecedented time of two hours and 22 minutes. It assures a house vote on the controversial legislation on May 23. Southern Democrats who blocked the legislation in the rules committee by refusing to report it, admitted privately it will pass and prepared to continue their fight in the senate where a filibuster is in prospect.

Chairman Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, of the house labor committee which reported the legislation, hailed the success of the petition as a victory for "the Democratic form of government." Majority Leader Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, one of the last to sign, said, "I think the bill will pass—but that doesn't mean I wouldn't vote for some amendments."

No Differentials.

In its present form the bill provides for minimum wages of 25 cents an hour to be raised to 40 cents an hour over a three-year period and maximum hours of 44 a week to be reduced to 40 hours in two years. It would be administered by the Labor Department and enforced by the Justice Department. It carries no differentials between the different sections of the country.

The senate bill provides for flat minimum wages of 40 cents an hour and a maximum 40-hour work week. It creates a three-man administrative board and allows geographical differentials. The sharp differences between the two measures forecasts a bitter battle in conference, if a filibuster does not trap the legislation in the rush for adjournment.

The 142 minutes that elapsed

ECKENER TO PLEAD WITH ROOSEVELT FOR HELIUM GAS

Veteran Asserts Germany Will Never Again Use Zeppelins in War.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(P)—The future of lighter-than-air transportation, in the opinion of Dr. Hugo Eckener, the world's foremost dirigible expert, depends entirely on the United States government.

"I came here today, saluted with honor by the United States navy, to plead directly with President Roosevelt and other leaders in Washington for helium—the non-explosive dirigible gas over which the United States has a commercial monopoly.

"Our newest airship, the LZ-130, is completed except for inflation," said the 69-year-old Eckener, president of the board of the German Zeppelin Transport Company. "But the LZ-130 never will fly unless it is filled with helium."

"Do you know, it is just a year ago today that the Hindenburg, filled with hydrogen, burned at Lakehurst. Such a disaster never will happen again. That is one thing I know.

"If we do not get helium, there will be no more zeppelins. I pray and hope and believe the United States government will let us buy the helium we need."

"If political reasons are responsible for our failure to obtain helium," said Eckener, "I shall be greatly surprised, for the airship should never be the victim of political circumstances. The Graf Zeppelin, the Hindenburg, all my ships, have always been an aid to friendly relations among nations."

The aeronautical veteran said there was no possibility zeppelins ever again would be used for war purposes by Germany.

Four-Day-Old Girl Placed in Iron Lung

TEXARKANA, Ark., May 6.—(P)—Four-day-old Billie Ann Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Thompson, was placed in an "iron lung" here today after developing respiratory paralysis.

The infant, born at the hospital here Monday, was discharged with her mother yesterday. She developed the paralysis early this morning and was rushed back to the hospital, where she received oxygen at regular intervals.

Attending physicians described her condition as critical.

Deputy Warden T. H. Perkins said.

A similar blaze destroyed the dormitory at the South camp less than a month ago.

No Injuries Reported.

Negro prisoners were led out of the burning building in orderly manner, and no injuries were reported. The regular guard detail at the camp was supplemented by squads of county policemen, but no attempts to escape were made, it was said.

The fire which destroyed the South camp barracks originated in the kitchen and destroyed the building while prisoners were led out of the camp.

The Stonewall loss was covered by insurance, it was reported.

Meanwhile, county commissioners held a morning conference and laid plans for seeking federal aid in installing a "model" prison system in Fulton county system and for aid in getting a WPA grant for construction of modern fireproof camps.

Under the tentative plan, three camps would be constructed by the government and leased to the county on a 50-year rental-purchase plan.

One camp would be built in north Fulton, another in south Fulton, near Red Oak, and the main camp would be built on the present Bellwood prison camp site, under the plan.

Prisoners at Stonewall camp, in old Campbell county, were building temporary quarters yesterday. Warden Clarke said a dormitory would be converted into a dormitory and that a dining hall and bathhouse would be completed by night.

Architects already have drawn plans for construction of modern fireproof buildings at the south camp, it was revealed. Plans for action will be laid at a series of conferences today and next week, it was understood.

The commission was expected to take action today on an inquiry into the origin of the blaze.

TOWN IN NICARAGUA DESTROYED BY QUAKE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 6.—(UP)—An earthquake today destroyed the town of Telica, near Leon, 52 miles from here, and heavily jarred the latter city.

Many persons were reported to have been injured at Telica, while numerous houses were destroyed in Leon, where the cathedral was badly damaged.

RIISING FRANC AIDS PARIS GOVERNMENT

Finances Bolstered for Speedy Rearmament of France.

PARIS, May 6.—(P)—The rising franc and the flood of returning capital today gave Premier Edouard Daladier's government the first success in its campaign to stabilize the currency and bolster finances for speedy rearment of France.

The franc, pegged by the government yesterday with its base at 179 to the pound sterling, closed at 178.40 to the pound, compared with yesterday's 178.90 and this morning's 178.50. In terms of dollars, the franc remained steady at 35.75 during the day, slightly better than yesterday's 35.85.

Two billion francs of fugitive capital was said by the finance ministry to have been returned to France today in addition to eight billion francs which poured in yesterday.

Most of the returning capital went into the stabilization fund which was selling francs and buying dollars and pounds sterling as Frenchmen brought their money home from abroad.

Meanwhile, Daladier resumed conferences with his economic advisers in the hope of pressing his advantage by hastening the next step in his recovery plan.

FRANCE MAY BUY PLANES FROM U. S.

Paris Awaits Favorable American Reply.

PARIS, May 6.—(P)—French aviation sources said today the air ministry has asked the French embassy in Washington to investigate the possibility of American manufacture and delivery of warplanes to France.

If a favorable reply is received, the sources said, the ministry will send a delegation to the United States to open negotiations for purchase of the planes. The delegation's duties would be similar to those of the British mission now in America exploring the American market.

The investigation was said to be a part of the air ministry's efforts to double the present 1,400 first-line fighting planes within two years.

HOWARD, TYPO CHIEF, ARRIVES FOR MEETING

Charles P. Howard, who started working for a newspaper in Kansas at a salary of 40 cents a week in 1891 and who for many years has been president of the International Typographical Union, arrived yesterday for a meeting of the Atlanta Typographical Union tomorrow.

He declared that Fascism, more than any other political philosophy, is the real menace facing America today, adding that the greatest fight on the "menace" would be made by wage earners. He thinks present business conditions are unsatisfactory, but believes they may improve following the congressional elections next fall "if certain forces permit them to improve."

"The ones who are doing the most talking about Fascism are the ones from whom the menace is most likely to spring," he asserted. "It is the 'ism' we must watch all these days."

Deadline for registering to vote in the September primary and November general elections is today, T. E. Suttles, county tax collector, announced yesterday.

May 8 was originally set as the deadline for paying poll taxes, but since May 8 falls on Sunday, Attorney General M. J. Yeomans ruled that payments must be made today. Suttles said his office would be open until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

will have to be discussed and consummated.

My companions are an efficient, tenacious band, impressively small in number for the exacting mountaineering mission ahead. Their past record among the Himalayan giants has put them in a class apart.

Everest has been described as man's supreme adventure in the material world. What is it apart from its symbolism? Simply the top wave of an ocean wall of stupor which stretches for 1,500 miles from the Karakoram to the Brahmaputra.

In this aristocracy, summits of 20,000 to 24,000 feet are only middle-class. There are dozens of peaks.

Mount Everest is acknowledged lord of them all, at best a thing of aloof and inconspicuous beauty, at worst a tyrant of violent, repellent gestures, capable of utter treachery. Icy hurricanes play about its outstretched arms. Nothing save a midocean in tempest could be more remote or more inhospitable than its crumpled cloak of schist and snow. Its height is 29,000 and two feet. At safe distance, that odd couple of feet always seemed good fun; it has intrigued us ever since our schoolboy eyes first blinked at its audacity. Could it—the tip of the pinnacle—be detached and brought home?

But we came with maturer acquaintance to learn that its sublime altitude might be spoken of only with respect as the extreme measure of human capacity to surmount physical obstacles, or even with reverence as an Olympus of Asiatic gods. Tibetans call it Chomo-Lungmo, goddess-mother-of-mountains; and the Potala knows the region it adorns as Lho-Cho-no-Ling, the bird-country-of-the-south.

over all the German leader's love feasts with Mussolini hovered the shadow of Joseph Stalin.

Informed German circles say that back of all Hitler's bids for Italian support is his desire somehow to eliminate Soviet Russia entirely from influence in Europe.

And to do this he wants first of all to break the ties which link Russia to France and Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovak Pressure.

Mussolini is represented as having promised to bring all diplomatic pressure possible upon the Czechoslovak government to grant the Sudeten Germans' demands to loosen, if not sever, the republic's alliance with Russia.

The Germans feel that Il Duce is in a position to argue with France that Great Britain, France and Italy can take care of the Mediterranean without her having to rely upon any Russian tie-up for her protection.

Hitler was said to be agreeable to renouncing any claim of becoming a Mediterranean power in the hope of making it easier for France to come to terms with Italy.

While the war display was going on, the authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, attacked statements made in Washington yesterday by Secretary of War Woodring, asserting that such comments "could not long continue without provoking most fateful and necessary reactions."

(Woodring spoke of the danger of widespread war in "continued aggression" by authoritarian powers.)

CODREANU CHARGED WITH HIGH TREASON

BUCHAREST, May 6.—(P)—A military court investigating activities of Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, leader of the outlawed Fascist-inclined Iron Guard, officially charged him with high treason today.

Trial on the charge, which carries a penalty ranging from imprisonment to death, was expected to begin May 15.

between the first and last signatures were filled with suspense. Seventy-five members milled about in the well of the chamber 15 minutes before the house met at noon. The petition was offered as soon as Speaker Bankhead gavelled the session to order.

It was served on a desk at the right and in the rear of the speaker's rostrum. Mrs. Norton, wearing a black crepe gown garnished with platinum pins and with a string of pearls about her neck, whipped out a green fountain pen and signed first.

The chamber broke into an uproar. Members scrambled to be among the first to scrawl their names. The noise became so terrific that Bankhead's voice could not be heard. He pounded his gavel vainly. Eager legislators formed a long line that snaked half way around the rear of the chamber.

"I ask unanimous consent that we suspend business until this petition is signed," roared Minority Leader Snell, of New York.

Cries of "I object" went up and Bankhead pleaded with the unruly legislators, assuring them all would be given an opportunity to sign. He called upon the sergeant-at-arms to restore order and then turned the gavel over to Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, who presided over debate on the road aid bill.

At 12:40 p. m. Mrs. Norton looked up at the press gallery and said "140." Representative Aleshire, Democrat, Ohio, drew a smattering of applause when he came to the desk in a wheel chair and signed. At 12:30 p. m. there were 173 signatures and the line had grown short.

Mrs. Norton left the chamber to exclaim to friends: "Isn't it wonderful! I'm so happy!" and hurried back.

The first rush found several Republicans, all the Progressives and a few southern Democrats among the signers. As activity began to dwindle, the labor committee's steering bloc swung into action. Stragglers appeared at 10-minute intervals and then at 2:10 p. m. the entire Louisiana delegation swung into line. They drew a loud cheer.

Rayburn Signs.

Soon afterward Rayburn, who previously had said he would not sign, stroled to the desk and reached for a pen. A shout went up. It was the signal for others to sign. At 2:22 p. m. Mrs. Norton waved a hand to the press galleries.

"It's all over!" she cried happily.

Several legislators who stood near her grasped her hand. Others patted her on the back. One threw his arm around her neck and the members cheered and whistled and applauded. The debate on the road bill came to a stop and Representative Taber, Republican, New York, screamed at the chair:

"What kind of a show is this?"

"Boo, boo," came from the Democratic ranks.

The doors to the chamber swung open to admit Representative Virginia Jencks, Democrat, Indiana, who flew back from Indiana to aid her feminine colleague. Representative Crosser, Democrat, Ohio, left a sickbed to give his assistance. Mrs. Norton begged with leaders that the pair be allowed to sign and then signed the steering bloc to stop work.

Ramspeck Congratulates.

Among the first to congratulate Mrs. Norton was Representative Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, ranking Democratic member of the labor committee. He opposed the bill because it does not give the south a differential in wages and hours.

"This does not mean that we will have legislation at this session," he said. "When congress takes this step, if it ever takes it, there will be no turning back on anything 'which will put more people out of work and this will do just that.' Among the Republicans who signed were Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, eastern campaign manager for former Governor Al. M. Landon in the 1936 presidential election, and Representative Fish, of New York.

Although several Republicans participated in today's maneuver, Snell condemned it as a "hippodrome which speaks for itself."

Taber said he would not vote for anything "which will put more people out of work and this will do just that." Among the Republicans who signed were Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, eastern campaign manager for former Governor Al. M. Landon in the 1936 presidential election, and Representative Fish, of New York.

Speaker Bankhead did not sign. Floor Whip Representative Boland, Democrat, Pennsylvania, did and he and other Democratic leaders followed Mrs. Norton in urging that the bill be allowed to vote on the issue and the renomination of Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, an advocate of wages-hours legislation, as having won many converts.

Representative Healey, Democrat, Massachusetts, chairman of the steering bloc, predicted that the senate would "respond to this bill the same as the house, because the American people want it." Representative McCormack, Democrat, Massachusetts, who swung the New England delegation behind the measure, said

Child Facing Death or Total Blindness

Baby Helaine Colan, five-week-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herman Colan, of Chicago, faces possible death unless she undergoes an operation that will leave her blind for life. Glioma, a tumor, is spreading along the optic nerves to the brain. The child is shown with Miss Ruth Kuhnert, a nurse.

List of Pay-Bill Petition Signers Includes Score of Southerners

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(P)—The 218 house members who signed a petition today to force house consideration of the wage-hour bill included 182 Democrats—22 of them from the south where much of the opposition to the legislation centers.

Joining with them were 23 Republicans, eight Progressives and five Farmer-Laborites.

These are the signers, Democrats unless otherwise designated, in the order in which they put down their names:

Norton, New Jersey; Curley, New York; Dixon, Ohio; Flannery, Pennsylvania; Welch, Republican, California; Lasker, Michigan; Fieder, New York; O'Day, New York; Phillips, Connecticut; Cullen, New York; Allen, Pennsylvania; Ashbrook, Ohio; Wood, Missouri; Smith, Washington; Better, New York; Demuth, Pennsylvania; Smith, Republican, Maine; Ford, California; Fitzgerald, Connecticut; Delaware, O'Malley, Wisconsin; Koppelman, Connecticut; O'Connell, Rhode Island; Forand, Rhode Island; Sacks, Pennsylvania.

Edmunds, Progressive, Wisconsin; Dunn, Pennsylvania; Voorhis, California; Quinn, Pennsylvania; O'Leary, New York; Buckley, New York; May, Kentucky; Seeger, Republican, New Jersey; McGrath, California; Thomas, Republican, New Jersey; Wolverson, Republican, New Jersey; Dowell, Republican, Iowa; Rabaut, Wisconsin; Stevenson, Progressive, California; Keogh, New York.

Edwards, Republican, Connecticut; Evans, New York; McCormack, Massachusetts; Leavy, Washington; Magrison, Minnesota; O'Neil, New York; Towey, New Jersey; Beam, Illinois; Fitzgibbon, New York; Imhoff, Ohio; Gray, Indiana; Flaherty, Massachusetts; Barry, New York.

Edmunds, West Virginia; Swope, Pennsylvania; Greener, Wyoming; Sweney, Pennsylvania; Byrne, New York; Bradley, Ohio; Plesner, Ohio; Harter, Ohio; Bloom, New York; Bernard, Farmer-Laborite, New York; Johnson, Farmer-Laborite, Minnesota; Citron, Connecticut; O'Connell, Montana; Duncan, Missouri; Elcher, Iowa; Patrick, Alabama; O'Leary, Pennsylvania; Slack, Pennsylvania; Bigelow, Ohio; Moser, Pennsylvania; Doherty, Pennsylvania; Keet, West Virginia; Ramsey, West Virginia; Faddis, Pennsylvania; Isaac, California; Scott, California; Claypool, Ohio; Fries, Illinois; Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts; Hull, Progressive, Wisconsin.

"Congress does not adjourn without a final vote on such vital legislation." Organized labor, which backed the petition, was jubilant. Executive Director John Brophy, of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said the result was a "great victory and an indication that congress is beginning to listen to the great mass of the people."

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, wired all members of the house this week urging that they sign the petition.

COX PREDICTS DEATH OF BILL

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Georgia, militant foe of wage-hour legislation, today charged the petition, which forced the bill out of his rules committee for consideration, was signed because of the "intense pressure exerted by a combination of labor groups and the chief executive."

No member of the Georgia congressional delegation signed the petition. Admitting that the revised labor standard bill would probably pass the house late this month, Judge Cox, a high ranking member of the rules committee, which on two separate occasions refused to permit it to be brought to the floor of the lower chamber, predicted there would be no wage-hour legislation at this session of the congress.

"In spite of the formidable array of advocates for the legislation," he said, "I still continue firm in the conviction that there will be no enactment of the measure before final adjournment."

The senate has passed a wage-hour bill which is radically different from the revised measure that the house will consider. Therefore, assuming the house does pass its bill, the two measures will have to go to conference between the senate and house.

Getting the bill into conference is where the southern bloc in the senate, which is opposed to the measure, hopes to filibuster "to death" any move to send the bills to conference. As the house cannot consider its bill earlier than May 23, dangerously near the time most members believe congress will adjourn sine die, it is reported that a none-too-vigorous or long-drawn-out filibuster will be necessary to kill the measure in the upper chamber.

OPERATION TO SAVE BABY ABANDON

Death or Blindness Averted for 5-Week-Old Chicago Infant.

CHICAGO, May 6.—(P)—Parents of five-week-old Helaine Colan today decided they would not attempt to save the baby by submitting her to an operation that would leave her blind for life. Glioma, a tumor, is spreading along the optic nerves to the brain. The child is shown with Miss Ruth Kuhnert, a nurse.

Surgeons advised they could halt the deadly growth by removing her eyes. Such a course would leave her blind for life.

No Operation—Death.

Failure to operate, they would mean death within months.

Throughout the day the parents, Dr. Herman Colan, 30, a dealer in real estate, and his wife, Estelle, 23, sought a decision. It was known late this afternoon by maternal grandfather, Dr. M. L. Hershman.

"They have decided," he said, "let nature take its course. He expressed the opinion neither eye could have been saved and that hope for warding death had virtually been a dream."

Dr. Hershman, a physician surgeon himself, had sought counsel of brain surgeons.

Specialists Disagree.

One of the specialists brought into consultation suggested the left eye, where the growth more advanced, be removed before determining whether the right eye should be removed. A second favored operation to remove both eyes separate attempt to halt the growth of the tumors. A third ed the infant probably would no matter what was done.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 7, 1938.

REASONABLE REQUESTS

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has extended to the federal administration an offer of full co-operation in efforts to revive business prosperity in this country. At the same time that group has requested of President Roosevelt certain modifications and abandonments of administration policies in its dealings with business.

Careful reading of those requests reveals an attitude of reasonableness on the part of business which holds out encouragement for effective teamwork between industry and government in the near future. There is an absence of such resentment as that which colored some expressions from the chamber in past years and an evidence of willingness to meet government at least halfway on issues in which the two interests are opposed.

The first request, for freedom from future government threats to capital needs of business, is self-evidently necessary. One of the chief causes of the present depression is the hesitancy of private capital to invest in enterprise which may face an impossible handicap through punitive taxes and other restrictions. Once lift that fear and there is ample capital, now idle, in the United States to finance a business expansion which would eliminate almost all the nation's economic troubles.

Simple justice calls for revision of the Wagner labor relations law. As that law operates today one party to an agreement, the employer, is held to strict accountability while the other party, the employees, is not so held. Nothing could add more to the stability of industry than contracts between management and labor to which both sides could be, equally, held by the law.

The proposal to leave regulation of hours and wages of work to the states will meet with wide approval. That question is, basically, one of state control. Such a solution would automatically solve the controversial issue of regional differentials and at the same time it would achieve the announced purpose of the present wages and hours bill in congress, to do away with sweatshop conditions of work.

The list of requests calls upon government to devote its chief attention to the expansion of foreign markets for American products, rather than to attempt control of markets by limitation of crops. It also suggests that agreements for planned production in industry should not place that industry in jeopardy of prosecution under anti-trust laws, but at the same time offers full co-operation in any proper steps for the elimination of evil monopoly or price-fixing practices.

There are other proposals, but the tenor of the entire list is such that government can, without sacrifice of its broad principles of humanitarian reform, and with simple business sagacity, accept the great majority of the suggestions.

This country, it has been frequently pointed out, is based upon business initiative and private enterprise. It can only hope to regain its place in the economic sun through providing every possible encouragement to legitimate private effort.

Curtailment of economic liberty is the first step toward loss of political liberty. Both business and government should ever keep this truth in mind and neither should permit abuses which imperil that individual freedom which is the proudest boast of the American democracy.

THE VALUE OF NAVAL STRENGTH

With the passage of the big navy bill by congress, providing an increase of 23 per cent in the present strength of the fleet, this country has said, in effect, that sufficient power will be massed to keep any invader at a safe distance from our shores and to protect American interests whenever and wherever warranted. The bill, it must be stressed, does not appropriate funds for this expansion, but merely authorizes construction. In the event this did not continue to be a necessity, congress can stop the program simply by refusing appropriation of funds.

Under present world conditions, however, this nation would be penny-wise and pound-foolish in not making certain that our sea strength is sufficient to cope with any emergency within reason. The expansion still would not provide enough vessels for a full Atlantic fleet and a full Pacific fleet. It does, however, furnish a guarantee of a margin of safety.

A country adequately prepared for trouble can almost always be assured of peace—an honorable peace. In a nation so well isolated as the United States this is especially true. The great tragedy is that a formula has not been determined which would permit reasonably-balanced armaments throughout the world, which would act as a deterrent against outside aggression yet not permit outward aggression.

The United States led in the movement for naval limitation, making more than her share of sacrifices to accomplish this aim. Today, however, these treaties have been scrapped and the balance of power disturbed by aggressor nations. In these treaties the United States voluntarily surrendered the power which today would enable diplomats to back representations with sufficient strength to force consideration. Nations of the acquisitive temperament cannot be stopped when they know the protests of another nation are not backed with sufficient weapons for enforcement of demands. This is true even when actual use of these weapons is not even considered. Force, it has well been said, is a necessary handmaiden to successful diplomacy in this troubled world.

While an enlarged navy, as provided in the expansion bill, will not permit this threat of force, it will insure this country against any such threat against itself. It will permit operations far enough from the coast of the United States to stave off any blockade and to keep war from the doorsteps of its citizens.

Certainly it has not plunged this country into an armaments race. It has merely provided for an eventual weapon which would guarantee an honorable peace.

THE NEW CO-OPERATION

The influence of a new era in urban-rural co-operation may be seen in the meeting today of the DeKalb County Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce at Panthersville as a part of the celebration of Community Day in that rich farming district.

The chamber has formulated a tentative program which, when actually under way, will reach and benefit every home in the county. The meeting today will be another step toward the closer relationship necessary to a successful culmination of the aims of the chamber.

It is heartening to note that the meeting will not be held in the courthouse at Decatur. Too often organizations of this type depend on a meeting place convenient to only one element of the citizens. In this case the meeting will be held in the center of one of the richest dairying sections of the state. Undoubtedly they will follow at other community centers which reflect the varied interests of the county.

The future of Georgia rests on this type of co-operation, in which all citizens join in making the state a better place for all. The meeting today may well be taken as one of the most significant of recent years.

Editorial of the Day

DIVORCE BY AGREEMENT

(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)
The rule of the Law of Moses was that "when a man hath taken a wife and it comes to pass that she finds no favor in his eyes, then let him write her a bill of divorce and send her out of his house." This was an ancient custom which for thousands of years had governed the early races of mankind. But when the Pharisees asked Jesus if it were lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause, He answered that "what God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." Then He declared a cause which is not only the main basis of the church's law on the subject, but which has been written into all the codes and statutes of succeeding generations—infidelity.

As the church extended her jurisdiction over the minds and consciences of men, its resolute stand against promiscuous divorce became the standard of procedure. This was a sharp reversal from the later laws of the Greeks and the Romans. The Roman matron had so far manumitted herself that she, too, could write a bill of divorce and what is more could assert certain property rights that had formerly been denied to her.

But there were many who continued to insist that marriage was a civil contract. That being true, it followed that the contract could be set aside or ended by proper legal authority. That is the conception that obtains in all of the states of the American Union today except South Carolina, which recognizes no cause for divorce. Of course, various causes are recognized by various states. These causes must be proven or confessed in court.

Divorce is now possible in Arkansas by mutual consent. A husband and wife may agree to disagree with or without cause. They may go their separate ways without explanation. The only requirement is that they remain separated for three years. At the end of that time, "the court shall grant an absolute decree at the suit of either party." Both Tennessee and Mississippi make separation a ground for divorce, and limit the separation to two years, but it must be willful, obstinate and even malicious. It cannot be by agreement; that is, the pleadings must not indicate that there has been an agreement.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

PAINLESS COLLECTION WASHINGTON, May 6.—Painless tax collection (which will probably be as free of pain as painless dentistry) is soon to be offered to the citizens by the considerate secretary of the treasury, Mr. Morgenthau as plans for decentralizing the entire revenue system before the year is out. In future, instead of heartless and occasionally rapacious emissaries of a distant Washington, the tax collectors will be just home folks.

Seriously, the new plan will only be regretted by the leeching swarm of Washington lawyers and lobbyists now batten on innocents who have disagreed with the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The plan is so simple, so sensible that one wonders why no one ever thought of it before Henry Morgenthau.

At present, the power to decide tax disputes is lodged in the Washington Bureau of Internal Revenue. To its chilly marble halls, unhappy pleaders must come, hat in hand, from Maine or Oregon, New Orleans or Chicago. The technical staff at the bureau, being perfectly unacquainted with local conditions, is chilly and more than impersonal. Collisions with the bureau are said to be worse for the blood pressure than any other form of contact with an off-entrained government.

Now Mr. Morgenthau expects to delegate the bureau's powers to 11 regional offices. Whenever a revenue and a citizen quarrel, the regional offices will judge the row on the spot and in the field, without long litigation or costly Washington expeditions. Each regional office will even have circuit riders attached to it, who will travel to small cities where disputes arise. Appeal will be taken direct from the regional offices to the board of tax appeals. And the Washington bureau will survive merely as a standard-setting and supervisory agency.

THEY HEARD AN OUTCRY

The new plan is, in fact, an example of the sort of thing the government can do if it cares to make life pleasant for the people. And the story of its conception is a pretty good demonstration of how government ought to work.

For some time now, Mr. Morgenthau, who is at heart a sensitive fellow, has been disturbed by the outcry against his tax collection system. Some of the outcry was unjustified, for the most charming tax collectors are rarely beloved. Some of it was well supported by the facts.

Of course, Mr. Morgenthau could not do anything about the ardent treasury New Dealer—and there is one—whose first words are, "Let me have that fellow's tax return," when he sees an anti-administration statement in the press. But Mr. Morgenthau was able to jail one agent who was making a tidy fortune out of advance inside knowledge of tax judgments, and banish one who was indulging in such petty graft as borrowing from taxpayers whose returns he had approved.

The same investigator turned up these instances of wrong. Mr. Morgenthau had the whole system worked at fault. It was too cumbersome, too distant and complex, particularly for the little fellow who cannot hire a Washington tax leech to fight a $50 judgment.

TRIAL IN LOS ANGELES

Mr. Morgenthau promptly called in Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of the Internal Revenue, and his own special assistant, Harold N. Graves. Mr. Graves is a tall, egg-bal, slow-spoken fellow, who has served the government for 30 years in the Post Office, Commerce and Treasury departments successively. At present he is the Morgenthau troubleshooter, relied on for such difficult tasks as improving the customs system and setting up the alcohol tax units.

Mr. Morgenthau suggested that the treasury might imitate the Farm Credit Administration. Before his elevation to the treasury, he had been administrator, and had installed a decentralized mechanism there. It had worked well, and he saw no reason why the same decentralization could not be applied to tax collection.

No objection was offered, and it was decided to start a trial regional office in Los Angeles, with authority over all tax collection in southern California and Arizona. Two months ago, the office was established, under the supervision of the trouble-shooting Mr. Graves. To date, the tax dispute rate in the Los Angeles regional office has fallen from 1,400 to 500 cases a year. Settlements have been so accelerated that its calculated litigation in the average case will take a year less. The whole tax protest system has been easier and more workable.

In sum, the experiment has been a success, and therefore the decision has just been made to extend the regional office mechanism until it includes the entire country. Perhaps Mr. Morgenthau has acted just in time. Taxpayers have been growing touchy lately. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

I say, old bean—
See here, old thing—
Make haste those nobbys
Clothes to fling 'em
Upon your classy form.

The curtain soon
Will upward ring,
Old time is on
His bally wing,
I ain't won't hear
The clanging of spring,
Ere winter's covey rings
Again shall bring
Far coats for you—
Make haste, old thing!

The Ancient

Culinary Art.

There are, I presume, few arts of man which antedate the art of cooking. There is no record of any period in the world's history when it could positively be said that man ate nothing but raw, uncooked foods.

Probably, though, the first inception of the idea of cooking came about accidentally. Some primitive ancestor of ours was, maybe, exploring about the still warm ashes of a recent forest fire. Perhaps he came across an uprooted plant with tuberous roots which had been cooked, but not burnt, by the heat of the blaze. Curiously, he tasted of the roots with which he was doubtless familiar in raw state. And the warm, cooked vegetables pleased his taste and his mind. The next time he was hunting for a similar experience.

Eventually he put the idea of fire and the succulent, hot food together. And decided he could achieve the same result himself, by holding the roots over a small blaze in his cave.

But, The Meat Chefs.

Something similar probably happened in regard to cooked meats. Some prehistoric citizen who had always torn the raw meat from the animals he killed with a stone club, or something, found a dead animal cooked beside another accidental fire. And the odor of the roasted meat, appealed to him. He tried it. And so, the first meat chef got an ancestor.

I am inclined to think that there is no art today, however, which contributes more to the happiness and the advancement of man than the art of cookery.

What, for instance, has more to do with the health of the happy, healthy mood out of which constructive work and progressive ideas spring, than good food, well prepared?

We devote quite a large proportion of our time on earth to the table. Necessarily so. And modern man has transformed what is, basically, a not so pleasant biological function into a delicate art.

The cook, whether high-salaried chef or humble housewife in her own kitchen, who creates a tasty, healthy, strength-giving meal has created something just as worthy of high honor, even though transient, as the picture from the brush of an artist.

Speaking Of

Delicacy in Dining—

Speaking of the delicate art of graceful dining, I once knew a highly cultured Chinaman. He first introduced me to the use of chopsticks, as an implement of the table.

And he used to shudder at many habits of the Occident, saying western civilization was barbaric in some details, when compared to the ancient culture of his home land.

Knives and forks at the table were an example of this barbarism, he said. It was merely a bringing of the implements of the butcher shop, crude, primitive tools of the savage, to the table, he would protest. Chopsticks, properly used, were unutterably more refined, delicate and decent. So he claimed.

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, May 7, 1913:

"The movement started by Councilman Claude L. Ashley, of the fourth ward, to have the city appropriate $5,000 for music in Grant and Piedmont parks during the summer months will receive the hearty co-operation of the park board."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Monday, May 7, 1888:

"The Planters hotel in Augusta has just passed into the hands of Mr. W. A. Camp, of Atlanta. Mr. Camp has been connected with both the Kimball and the Markham and more recently the hotel at New Holland springs. There is a nebulous scheme on foot which has not yet materialized to put up a grand hotel in Augusta after the style of the Kimball House."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Question of NEW YORK. May 6.—I wish I knew something about money, banking and credit so that I could agree with Jesse Jones, or dispute him just as noisily, on his warning that the banks had better take the rubber band off that blanket roll of theirs and let a few bills into circulation if they don't want to be taken over. But all I know is that the banks have got so much "scratch," as they call it around the horse yards, that a man who wants to squirrel away a little money for safe keeping these days is treated like a safe-blower or a customer at the peephole of an old-time speakeasy.

They want to know where he got it, why he doesn't spend it, why he doesn't take it to the rival bank down the block instead of picking on them, how long he expects to store it and how long it has been since his last deposit.

They limit the amount he may keep on ice in a savings account, and, further to discourage the fine old virtue of thrift, they press the old virtue of parsimony by betting on a favorite in a New York hand-book. It is no harder to wheedle a $2 touch out of a pawnshop on an old banjo or trombone than to persuade a New York savings bank to accept $10,000 cash money.

Banks Are and when they print their totals these figures read like the score by innings of a 17-inning game called on account of darkness. Yet, as Mr. Jones says, and as Honest Harold Ickes, the house dick of the administration, complained a few months ago, if a man wants to borrow a double saw to pay his alimony or open a new saloon they bar the doors, man the peepholes and warn him that at his first false move they will blow him through Jim Farley's post offices all over the country.

Henry Morgenthau is showing out government bonds on the credit of an institution which is practically in the hands of the sheriff right now, and people regard these bonds as gilt-edge investments even though they know the government's cuff has been scribbled clear up to the shoulder.

People who would holler "robber-baron" when the doors of a private corporation to demand a reorganization if they saw the chairman bite the end off a quarter cigar have complete confidence in the I. O. U.'s of a concern which, under their own eyes, has built a reputation for honesty and integrity. The fair, efficient cost and in Florida recently paid $150 a month to a woman to supervise a "survey" of the value of the tourist trade, although the woman's family income is around $200 a week.

Spirit of They do this in the spirit of the gambler who played the gimmick wheel because it was the only wheel in town. What else is there to do with money? Put it in insurance, maybe? Then what are the insurance companies going to do for income with so much money around that the banks are almost on the point of charging a fee for dead storage?

Put it into action in business investments? All right, what investments, with businessmen all singing the blues and the administration threatening to use the borrowed money to start a subsidized rival peanut stand to underseal and destroy every private peanut stand in the country?

I just wish Mr. Jones or the house dick would tell us some day about some good private industries in which an investment would pay a safe 5 or 6 per cent, or some respectable gamble in which the odds would be all this fall money could get the same action at the same odds that they would face betting on the black or red. Of course, if they won on the latter they might have to kick back as much as two-thirds to the federal and state kettles—a factor which reduces the odds from the neighborhood of even money to something like 4 to 3. But no matter.

People who do have any money haven't had any action for so long that they are already ready to bet on automobile numbers. But the idea of the money last year and bought some of Henry Morgenthau's mavericks through Jim Farley, even knowing that the boys would then turn around and give it away, some of it to busted people in need of eating dollars, but a lot of it to people like that who get $150 for "surveying" the tourist business, whose husbands draw $350 and her son, I believe, $175 from the state. But that's me. I even play slot machines, although I once saw an autopsy on one.

Question Box On the Bible

By W. L. PETTINGILL.

THE FALLEN ANGELS. Who are the fallen angels? Fallen angels are referred to as having "kept not their first estate, but left their own habitations," and as being "chained under darkness," awaiting judgment (2 Peter 3:4; Jude 6; 1 Cor. 6:3; John 5:22). Then there are fallen angels under Satan's leadership. These may be the same as the unclean spirits or demons (Gen. 3:1; Rev. 20:10; Matt. 7:22). The awful destiny of Satan and his angels is described in Matthew 25:41 and Revelation 20:10. It is for these that the lake of fire is prepared.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

I don't profess to know what goes on in the feminine mind, but from recent magazine articles on the subject, and occasional remarks by your friends, I get the idea that modern girls frankly go hunting for a man and employ whatever tactics seem most likely to bring him down.

The idea isn't new. Since the beginning of recorded history woman has been handicapped and ill-used because of her sex. Except in regions where she did all the work, and therefore was valued as a trader as work-stock, her only hope through the ages was to get man of her own to give her security and dignity.

So she developed the art of making herself attractive and desirable. And though romancers picture man as the hunter, a man a-courting did indeed pursue the maid and praise her a talk of his own unworthiness, the fact remains that she deliberately tempted him to pursue and made herself easy to catch.

She even used tricks, as a hunter does in trapping a wary animal, and her deceptions were so successful that England at one time had a law forbidding the use of false curls, padding and makeup to catch the simple male.

No matter how deliberately young spinsters planned the conquests or how artfully they tempted men to desire them, the inborn wisdom and the secret lore of their sex taught them to preserve and encourage man's belief that they were hard to get.

They knew by instinct that man most desires whatever is denied and measures the worth of every prize by the difficulty of winning it. So they were coy and startled, fawns, and rough man's proposition of marriage, which they had long campaigned to win, always astonished and shocked them.

Times and customs and manners and standards have changed, but sex and nature remain the same, and decent boys still adore and respect and almost worship the girl they hope to marry.

They don't adore one who is too openly chasing them or who is too brazenly trying to use her appeal.

Everybody, high and low—neighbors, social leaders, heroes, press agents—all alike feel a little contempt for the person who seems too eager to be accepted. Why should a boy be an exception?

Love, DAD.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Men, my brothers, men the workers, ever reaping something new,
That which they have done but earnest of the things that they will do."

Philip La Follette dedicates his new party to "the right of a free people to work, and by their work to add to the wealth of the country." By "right to work" he does not mean what opponents of organized labor's closed shop mean. He means the right to an economic system which gives each man something to do. What has so much impressed Columnists Walter Lippmann and Dorothy Thompson with the La Follette philosophy is its recognition of the need of producing a greater sum total of national wealth if any of us in this country are to prosper, and its refusal to grant anything to pressure groups against the whole good of a whole people.

The La Follette philosophy is indeed impressive. And so is the similar philosophy to which all of us, Democrats and Republicans, business leaders, progressives and conservatives, seem to be coming.

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON
WORKING WITH CHRIST Sunday's lesson, Mark 9:30 is titled, "Co-operating in Service." I prefer to think of the son as working with Christ, there can be no co-operation worthwhile, it seems to me, unless the motive in Christian devotion and its purpose is the glory of Christ. One will not look the fact that this lesson lows immediately upon last Sunday's lesson in which the disciples of Jesus came to humiliation when they forgot Him—forgot to pray for Him to do all things as unto Him. Only as we are workers together with Him can our efforts amount to anything.

Thus the lesson seems to me to lend emphasis to three great truths—three very practical lessons in which all who seek in sincere walk in the way of Christ. First, we are to co-operate with Christ; second, we are to co-operate with Christ; third, we are to co-operate for Christ. And as come to more fully understand words of the Master in the opening paragraph of Sunday's lesson we must see that He links service with service. We cannot co-operate (work) very effectively unless we lose sight of self and fix thought upon Him.

As Jesus walked along the sea and talked to the disciples all service, He told them of His death and resurrection—death upon a cross for the salvation of the world—but they understood not His meaning. Their minds were on themselves—upon advantageous position for themselves. Jesus told little child in His arms, and unto the disciples rebuked the Master shall receive one such children in My name, receive Me." Here He lays down the greatness in His kingdom. In service means first in honor.

And the third paragraph of lesson brings into sharp relief the severe rebukes the Master gave to His disciples, and case is the more striking in fact that the beloved disciple John, occasions this rebuke by heated words and the apparent tolerance which he and the other disciples felt toward one who was casting out

O-JAPANESE WAR DEADLOCKED AFTER 11 MONTHS

Whacking Tactics Stall
Japanese Drive and

ANGHAI, May 7.—(Sat-

declared war between China and Japan.

The main front in southern China province, Japan's mod-

the second time in six weeks.
It had been forced back from its last advances in other prov-

Chinese asserted they still were engaged slightly in their counter-

Japanese lines.

In months of warfare have starting changes in China.
Japan confidently began as Neutral observers believe three years—China's German military advisers, her Soviet Russian-made

Chinese mobile columns again

the bureau said, as there is little chance of rain during the next

State Senator Millican Announces For Re-election From 52d District

Paul Lindsay Also Is Expected To Seek Another Term.

State Senator G. Everett Millican yesterday announced his candidacy for re-election and it appeared that Senator Paul L. Lindsey, also of Atlanta, would ask for another term, after the 34th district, which he represents, voted to permit DeKalb county to furnish the senator again.

Senator Millican made a brief announcement as he paid his entry fee to Ernest Brewer, secretary of the 52nd district senatorial committee.

"During my two terms in the state senate I have endeavored at all times to serve the people of Fulton county to the best of my ability," Mr. Millican said. "If re-elected I will continue that policy."

Senator Millican is unopposed for re-election, although Mayor Pro Tem. Robert Carpenter has indicated that he may enter the race.

After a stormy session at the DeKalb county courthouse, the 34th district committee, comprising representatives from DeKalb,
Newton and Rockdale counties, voted five to four to permit De-Kalb to furnish the senator again, giving Lindsay the right to run.

The district formerly used the rotation system. DeKalb had a population of more than 70,000 while the combined population of Newton and Rockdale is about 30,000.
C. C. King and Pat Campbell, both of Newton county, had announced for the senate. They were present at yesterday's meeting and although King announced he would withdraw, Campbell, who has represented Newton county two terms in the house, gave no indication of his plans.

Senator Lindsay has made no formal announcement but his friends said yesterday he intends to offer for re-election.

Safety First!! Literary Youths 'Taken for Ride'

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(P)—
Sleeping all night in life preservers left 100 Atlanta, Ga. schoolboy patrolmen slightly stiff for their capital sightseeing today.

An older boy in the group of 380 told his comrades on an overnight boat ride from Norfolk to Baltimore last night that real safety lovers always wore preservers to bed.

About 100 of the landlubber
youngsters between 9 and 15 years old fell for the story. They wore the lifebelts under and over their pajamas, attached to their feet and around their neck, according to C. B. Bishop, manager of the Atlanta Motor Club, in charge of the trip.

The Atlanta boys, here for a national schoolboy safety parade and conference tomorrow, visited the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Arlington cemetery today. Yesterday they saw two navy ships launched at the Norfolk navy yard, Bishop said.

cumbs on 65th Wedding Anniversary.

W. F. Noot, civil engineer and superintendent of construction for the fourth corps area, died late Thursday night at her son's home, came on the 65th anniversary of her marriage.

Born in Wales, she was married there to William Noot, a civil engineer. Residing in Canada, the couple moved to Idaho 62 years ago, where Mr. Noot was assistant state engineer for many years.
Since her husband's death in 1920,
Mrs. Noot had made her home with her son. A resident here for the last seven years, she was a member of Holy Trinity Episcopal church, Decatur.

Surviving in addition to her son are two granddaughters, Miss Patricia Noot, a student at the High Museum of Art, and Mrs. Thornwell Jacobs Jr., daughter-in-law of the president of Oglethorpe University, and a great-granddaughter, Harriett Anne Jacobs.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of A. S. Turner, with the

STUDENTS IN MIDST OF 1938 CONTESTS

High School Pianists End
Athens Competition.

ATHENS, Ga., May 6.—(P)— Athletic events and contests in home economics, violin and declamation engaged several hundred students from 200 Georgia high schools today.

The contests are sponsored annually by the Georgia High School Association.

Tonight the University gave a dinner in honor of the district and state officers of the high school association, with Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech,
as the speaker.

A debating contest, continuation of one-act plays and finals in the golf matches are scheduled Saturday.

Student pianists were judged by Michael McDowell, of the University music faculty in the chapel here last night.

McDowell named Virginia Sher-ell, Cumming, first prize winner in the Class B contest. Steve Hall, of Lee High, Chickamauga, was second, and Kathryn Scott, Pelham, was third.

Mary Frances Neisler, Reynolds, won first place in the piano recitals for Class C. Mary Estes, Gay, was second, and Billie Owens, of Boston, was third.

Ruth McKinney, Ball Ground, was the only entrant from Class
D high schools in the state meet this year. She was given first place.

ATLANTAN CHARGES LIQUOR TAX ILLEGAL

Bail Trover Proceedings
Brought Against Police
Chief to Recover Whisky

Four cases of whisky lacking state tax stamps were seized by municipal court deputy marshals from the city police custodian yesterday following bail trover proceedings against Police Chief M.
A. Hornsby to recover the liquor.

The suit, filed by W. H. Scott, charges Georgia's act legalizing and taxing liquor is unconstitutional and contests the right of the state revenue commission to confiscate liquor purchased out of the state for private consumption in Georgia.

The whisky—three cases of 24 pints and one case of 10 quarts—was taken from the city police storeroom and placed in a courthouse vault pending outcome of the action.

Scott's petition charges the prohibition repeal act violates state and federal constitutions and the interstate commerce act.

The state constitutional provision that all taxation must be uniform upon the same class of subjects is violated in that a tax of $1 per gallon is assessed as a tax on whisky, the suit charges.
This exceeds the limitation of five mills tax on property, Scott's petition sets out.

Attorney George Finch, representing Scott, charged that his client has been denied the right to purchase "distilled spirits outside the state for his own use."

Plans for New Chamber To Be Discussed at Community
Day Program.

Farmers and businessmen of DeKalb county will gather today in Panthersville to celebrate Community Day with a barbecue and map further plans for the new DeKalb County Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting will be held at the Southwest DeKalb High school.
The program will open at 9:30 o'clock with a track meet between the elementary schools of the district on the new athletic field.
From 11:30 to 12:30 o'clock the Future Farmers' livestock show will be given.

Barbecue will be served at noon and various county leaders are scheduled to speak from 1:30 to 2:30 o'clock. A ball game and other recreational features also will be included on the program.

Charles D. McKinney, chairman of the citizens' committee on organization, said the addresses will be suggestive of the program being undertaken by the DeKalb County Chamber of Commerce, and will cover interests of every section of the county, including educational, home, church, industrial, financial and agricultural.

Speakers on the program will be Roy Leathers, solicitor general of the Stone Mountain circuit;
Charles A. Matthews, county commissioner; Scott Canlier, mayor of Decatur; R. N. Jones, teacher of agriculture at Southwest DeKalb school; Dr. L. C. Fischer; Preston
S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company; K. D.
Howington, of the Consolidated
Quarries, Lithonia; Dr. J. R. Mc-Cain, president of Agnes Scott College; Legare Davis, of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, and John Wesley Weekes, former senator from the 34th district.

LOBBY COMMITTEE REFUSES TO HEAR DR. GLENN FRANK

Editor Accused of Using 'Rural Progress' as Propaganda Magazine.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—The senate lobby committee refused today to permit Dr. Glenn Frank, editor of Rural Progress and chairman of the Republican program committee, to answer charges that his magazine was a propaganda medium financed by "great capitalists."

After Dr. Frank had attempted several times to make a statement, Senator Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, of the investigating committee, told him: "This committee doesn't intend to permit you to use this as a forum to air your Republican views."

Dr. Frank had asked as a "citizen and taxpayer" for the right to make a statement.

"Does Not Want Facts." "I understand that you don't want any statement of the facts in this investigation," he told the committee when it recessed without calling him to the stand.

"We have had a full and complete statement of the facts in this investigation," Senator Schwellenbach shouted back.

Dr. Frank, former University of Wisconsin president, was not subpoenaed by the committee. The only witness called was Maurice V. Reynolds, publisher of Rural Progress, a Chicago farm magazine distributed free in seven mid-west states.

Volunteers to Answer. Several times Dr. Frank volunteered to answer questions about the magazine's editorial policies and financing, after Reynolds had said from the witness stand that he was unable to supply the information.

Each time he was told that if the committee wanted to question him, he would be called to the stand.

"Kindly sit down," Senator Green, Democrat, Rhode Island, commanded when Frank protested that an assertion by Green was "not quite right."

At another point Green warned Dr. Frank not to attempt to communicate with Reynolds.

"The only thing I am trying to do is help the committee get the answers and expedite this thing," Dr. Frank retorted.

Studying financial records of the magazine, the investigators said the publication had lost $351,000 since it was founded in 1934. Reynolds said the losses were met by obtaining "new capital."

Charges Intimidation. After the hearing, Dr. Frank charged the committee's investigation was part of a campaign of "terror and intimidation" against newspapers and magazines which criticize the new deal.

He made his charge in a statement to the press shortly after the hearing. Dr. Frank said he was disturbed by accumulating evidence of "a determination to intimidate the free press of the country by such terroristic methods."

Rivers Gets Key to New York's Big Heart

Governor Rivers yesterday received the key to one situation—the New York World's Fair. C. C. Currie, courier for the exposition, is shown on the left as he presented the silver key to the Governor while Mayor LaGuardia (center) looked on. The Governor assured Currie that the state would be well represented at the fair. The courier said he would spend several days in Georgia.

West Removed From Sumptuous Interior Office

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(UP)—Dapper Undersecretary of Interior Charles West, last of the White House contact crew which flourished on Capitol Hill in early days of the New Deal, today was firmly but gently ousted from the sumptuous office in the Interior Department which he hadn't occupied for two months.

It was gentle because he wasn't there to witness the transfer of his multifarious belongings to less pretentious quarters. It was firm because it was engineered by Secretary Ickes, who long has feuded with West and who is firm in all things where West is concerned.

It was like the passing of an era. West, genial and bright-eyed, long led the "button-hole" squad which beat a path to the doors of wavering members of congress when vital issues were at stake and a restatement of White House "gospel" was necessary to sway uncertain votes.

But of late his activities have been less and less marked, as have those of his cohorts. Democratic resentment summarily ordered an assault on the administration's "lobbyist" tactics were given as chief reasons for the decline in the squad's popularity and usefulness.

The climax came in West's feud with Ickes. The Interior secretary summarily ordered an "economy" broom applied to West's office. James Rohrer, West's brother-in-law, and four stenographers were swept out as "deadwood."

MISSION OFFERINGS INCREASE IN APRIL

Baptist Home Board Total of $116,120 Is $10,945 Above Last Year.

Offerings to the Baptist Home Mission Board totaled $116,120 during April, an increase of $10,945.43 over the same month last year, Dr. J. B. Lawrence, executive secretary-treasurer, reported yesterday.

"This increase is a very healthy indication," the mission official said, "since the increases for April came through two regular sources of denominational support, the co-operative program and the Annie W. Armstrong offering."

From the Annie W. Armstrong offering, a special campaign for home missions put on each March by the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention, the Home Mission Board received $80,391.29 in April, Dr. Lawrence said.

Other April receipts included $22,848.74 from the Baptist co-operative program, $7,017.75 in designated funds, $5,421.10 from the Hundred Thousand Club, debt-paying agency, and special gifts of $441.45.

A significant item under disbursements, he said, was the redemption of bonds amounting to $8,000. George F. Whitman, the board's attorney, said a number of estates were being settled which would net several thousand dollars for Baptist home missions.

GEORGIA IS URGED TO TELL THE WORLD

Currie, N. Y. Fair Courier, Charmed by Sights; Hands Rivers Silver Key.

Georgia will have a "satisfactory exhibit" at the New York World's Fair next year, Governor Rivers said yesterday in welcoming C. C. Currie, goodwill courier of the fair, who presented the chief executive a silver key to the exhibition's main gates.

"The state already has set up a commission to take charge of our participation in this big event and we will be satisfactorily represented," Governor Rivers said.

Major Clark Howell is chairman of the advisory committee of the fair. A chairman of the full commission will be named shortly.

Currie told the Governor he felt that the state has many advantages which are not stressed to northern people and that these could be brought out at the fair.

"A great many people who visit Georgia fail to stop because they have not been informed of the advantages you have to offer," the fair representative said. "We believe that if your state will advertise these advantages it will bring great good to your people."

The fair commission will function after the election of the chairman. Meanwhile C. C. Job, executive director of the State Planning Board, is in charge of preliminary arrangements.

465 FIRE COLLEGE STUDENTS HONORED

Diplomas and Certificates Are Awarded Here.

Awarding of diplomas and certificates to more than 400 "students" yesterday brought to a close the fourth and "most successful" session of the Georgia State Fire College, which this year had a record-breaking registration of 465 firemen.

Graduation exercises were held in the Lee Street school auditorium and the presentations were made by Mayor Hartsfield. Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Atlanta school superintendent, was the principal speaker.

Volunteer and regular firemen from five southern states attended this year's school. Drill classes were held at Station No. 7 and night lecture courses were given at the Ansley hotel.

The school opened Wednesday. Diplomas were awarded to approximately 150 who completed the entire four-year courses and certificates to those who attended all the classes this year.

SOLONS TO DEFEY JERSEY CITY BAN

FBI Protection Tentatively Refused O'Donnell.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(UP)—Representatives O'Donnell, Democrat, Montana, and Bernard, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, asked Attorney General Cummings today for Federal Bureau of Investigation agents to protect them from threatened beatings when they speak at Jersey City tomorrow night on constitutional rights.

O'Donnell sent a written request to the Department of Justice after reading of threats that Catholic war veterans and other groups in Jersey City would beat him and his colleague with rubber hose.

Justice Department officials tentatively informed O'Donnell tonight they had no authority to accord him protection.

"I'm going to Jersey City whether I get protection or not," O'Donnell said angrily.

WILSON, COLLINS ASK RE-ELECTION

Announcements Clarify Political Atmosphere; Rivers Remains Silent.

Georgia's clouded political atmosphere began to clear yesterday when Secretary of State John B. Wilson followed Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins in announcing his candidacy for re-election. Both Wilson and Collins had been widely mentioned as possible gubernatorial candidates.

Meanwhile, Governor Rivers remained silent on his future plans. There has been talk that he will oppose Senator Walter F. George, but every indication has been that he will seek re-election.

Already Rivers is opposed by Hugh Howell, Atlanta attorney, and there are reports from Fayetteville that Charles D. Redwine, former secretary and banker of that city, whom Rivers defeated two years ago, might make another effort to obtain the office.

Refuses Comment.

Rivers was at his desk at the capital yesterday but he refused to comment on the political situation.

"I haven't given politics a thought since my speech two weeks ago," the Governor said. "My announcement, however, will be made in ample time."

In a speech before the state Democratic executive committee two weeks ago, Rivers said he was postponing until later any announcement he had to make of his plans, asserting that he did not wish to become a candidate for any office at that time.

The Governor's announcement now expected within a week or 10 days. Senator George recently announced he would be a candidate for re-election. He is expected to make a formal announcement and qualify as soon as possible. The entries are to be closed June 1.

Wilson Statement.

Secretary of State Wilson, in announcing for re-election, issued a statement pointing out that the new corporation law, and other new laws set up by the legislature required attention of an official familiar with their scope and that he felt he could best serve the state by remaining on his present post. In the statement he thanked those friends who have urged him to enter the Governor's race.

Dr. Collins made no statement when he unveiled for his present post. Thursday. Speculation regarding both he and Wilson as prospective candidates for Governor was predicated somewhat on Governor Rivers' intentions.

McWhorter to Run. Meanwhile, Commissioner Matt L. McWhorter, of the public service commission, announced for re-election. Thus far he is without opposition. McWhorter paid his entry fee and qualified yesterday. He said he would make a campaign statement in a few days.

Secretary of State Wilson's statement follows: "During recent weeks friends and citizens generally from every section of Georgia have urged that I become a candidate for Governor of Georgia this year. I am utterly unable to find words that would adequately express my sense of deep gratitude for these many expressions of confidence and esteem."

"The people of Georgia have been good to me beyond measure. They have overwhelmingly honored me by elections to the high office of secretary of state through co-ordination of my work there has been improvement in the public service by this department. I am humbly proud of this fact."

"A recent act of the legislature revising the corporation laws of the state, a new building and loan act, and amendments to other laws affecting the duties of the secretary of state make it necessary to set up a complete and efficient method of administering these new laws."

"I have a deep conviction that no public official should treat lightly great confidence and trust reposed in him by the people and that public service should be rendered without regard to partisan political preference."

"On account of these conditions I will not be a candidate for Governor at this time but will again be a candidate for secretary of state. In doing so I renew my pledge to all the people of Georgia to continue my best efforts in giving them economic, honest public service, free of partisan politics."

HOUSE UNANIMOUSLY PASSES ROADS BILL

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—The biennial bill authorizing the appropriation of millions of dollars for roads, always popular with Republicans and Democrats alike, passed the house today without a dissenting vote.

Sponsors of the legislation, which carries authority for a $484,000,000 allocation to states during the 1940 and 1941 fiscal years, predicted it would encounter no more difficulty in the senate than it did in the house.

Robert Coogan Guarded, Crank Letters Is Reason

LOS ANGELES, May 6.—(AP)—Los Angeles, May 6.—(AP)—Robert Coogan, 13-year-old brother, Robert, is under constant guard, his mother, Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein, said today. Frequent references to the purported millions in the Coogan estate, brought out by Jackie's suit against his mother and his step-father, have inspired many "crank letters," Mrs. Bernstein said.

Mrs. Bernstein said she had heard the report she might become a grandmother and her only comment was, "that would be wonderful—but I don't believe there is any truth in the story."

Nor is there, according to Jackie's wife, Betty Grable.

JOHN D. WILSON. MATT L. MCWHORTER.

Wealthy Lord Of Ancient Line Dies in England

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—The ninth Duke of Devonshire, towering master of one of England's greatest feudal families, died today at the age of 69 within the historic walls of his principal seat, Chatsworth House, where Mary, Queen of Scots, once was imprisoned.

Statesman-sportsman, he was a former governor general of Canada and one of the wealthiest landowners in England.

The origins of his line are lost in English antiquity. One of his ancestors was Sir John Cavendish, a chief justice who in 1381 was beheaded at Bury St. Edmunds by insurgent peasants led by Jack Straw and Wat Tyler, who revolted against a poll tax.

Big, stolid, but keen and resolute, the Duke—Victor Christian William Cavendish—spent his last years passionately hating automobiles, fishing for giant salmon on one of his five great estates, entertaining royalty and riding in hansom cabs.

A few years ago he called motor cars "foul, stinking things and horrible brutes" and mourned the old days when men rode like gentlemen "and not like crashing cabs."

The royal apartments in his Chatsworth House in Derbyshire have housed many kings and queens. But when George V and Queen Mary went there in 1933, the Duke and Duchess relinquished their own rooms, thinking the state apartments not good enough.

The Duke's landholdings exceeded 180,000 acres. But in 1926 Chatsworth House and other estates were turned over to a corporation to escape tax burdens.

MUSEUM IS URGED FOR ARCHAEOLOGY

Macon Is Proposed as Site for Southeastern Institution.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 6.—Macon, where archaeologists into Indian mounds and uncover a wealth of information related to prehistoric peoples, was gestured today as the key site of a southeastern museum of archaeology.

Dr. A. R. Kelly, archaeologist of the National Park Service at Macon, described explorations of Indian mounds there in a paper today at the annual meeting of the Society for Georgia Archaeology. He urged greater museum facilities at Macon and proposed training school capable of preparing trained archaeologists "to the rich treasure of prehistoric and to make this knowledge available to the public."

Gordon R. Wiley, of Macon, assisting archaeologist of the mulgee national monument, scribed in a paper the method of distributing the growth-rings of timbers in them.

Dr. Vladimir J. Fewkes, an archaeologist in charge of the Valley Mound excavations, described discoveries made in a project at Irene Mound, near Valdosta, in a paper the method of distributing the growth-rings of timbers in them.

Dr. Fewkes called Georgia of the richest territories in southeastern archaeology, for its distribution of sites with countless relics of its aboriginal life.

SURPLUS CABBAGE SOLD

COUNTY OFFICERS ASSIGNED TO WORK WITH GRAND JURY

Several More Promised at End of School Term by Commissioners.

Three Fulton county policemen yesterday were assigned to special duty with the new May-June grand jury by the county commission and assignment of "several more policemen" in the future was promised in answer to a request for aid in its probe law enforcement graft.

The policemen will aid in unearthing evidence and bringing in witnesses, it was understood. Policemen Marion Riley, Burdett Carroll and John Carter were assigned to grand jury work. Additional policemen will be assigned to work with the jurors when the grand jury meets on June 3, commissioners said.

Commissioners Appear.
The five county commissioners appeared before the grand jury yesterday, where Colonel B. L. Egger, foreman, made the request for the men, it was understood. "From the work they outlined seems that everyone will have double up if it is to be completed this term," Commissioner George F. Longino said. Commissioners said they were formed they would be called later by the grand jury for other discussion of the graft and other county matters. County policemen are needed at street crossings until schools are let, Longino said.

LABAMA LEADS GEORGIA IN STILLS

Unit Value Is Far Less, Figures Show.

Agents of the Federal Alcohol Unit accounted for 110 stills in Georgia last month, with an estimated value of $13,115 as compared with 212 in Alabama with value of $9,109, the Atlanta district office reported yesterday. Both figures represented an increase over the corresponding figures for March, when 101 stills with a value of $12,307 were seized in Georgia and 111 stills with value of $6,256 were seized in Alabama.

ABINET SLAPPED IN BRITISH BALLOT

First Election Since Italian Pact Is Held.

LONDON, May 6.—(UP)—The government of Prime Minister Chamberlain was defeated in the first by-election since conclusion of the Anglo-Italian agreement, turns from Lichfield constituency showed today.

The election, necessitated by the death of James Lovat-Fraser, National Laborite, was won by C. C. Cole, Laborite, who received 23,000 votes. Poole's opponent and other candidate, G. B. Cradock, national government member, polled 22,700.

"I won because the people of Lichfield have no faith in the foreign policy of the so-called national government," said Poole.

Autocratic States Held Dealing Death Blow to Religion

Baptist World Alliance Secretary, Here for Visit, Hits Tendency.

Totalitarianism is dealing a death blow to religious freedom in many countries of Europe, Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, declared yesterday as he arrived in Atlanta to make preparations for the world-wide Baptist meeting to be held here in July of next year.

"The totalitarian idea is as catching as a disease," Dr. Rushbrooke said, "and it is now spreading to the smaller republics fringing Russia."

This tendency of the state to extend its control over the church will prevent a general spiritual revival throughout the world in the near future, he believes.

Baptists Worried.
Dr. Rushbrooke has hopes for the survival of democracy. He says that totalitarianism may spend its force and "there may come a time when the democratic idea may be as catching as autocracy is today." The Baptists, he said, are greatly worried over the plight of democracy.

"We'll just have to stand our ground, make democracy as effective as possible, and strive to reverse the tendency toward autocracy and centralization," he said. Commissioners said they were formed they would be called later by the grand jury for other discussion of the graft and other county matters. County policemen are needed at street crossings until schools are let, Longino said.

Experience of Officers.
It was understood that the three county policemen would be assigned to outside work. Riley and Carroll are experienced in the apprehension of liquor cars while Carter's specialty has been investigation of automobile thefts.

Grand jury indictments of six policemen and two sheriffs charged with the work of finding missing witnesses, serving subpoenas and making statements has fallen largely on the three special investigators of the solicitor general's office.

The grand jury yesterday had called for 24 witnesses but investigators were able to locate only 15. The session yesterday was adjourned early in the afternoon with plans laid for resumption of the probe at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

COMMITTEE FAVORS
SEIZURE OF SHIPS

Senators Approve Giving President War Power.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—Legislation authorizing the President to commandeer all American flag ships in the interest of national defense won approval today of the senate commerce committee.

Chairman Copeland, Democrat, New York, who frequently has criticized broad grants of presidential authority, said the new legislation, "was not a dangerous grant."

"There is no use having a navy unless you can commandeer ships to support it," the New Yorker said. "In matters of war we have to trust the President and the secretary of state."

The measure, approved and sent to the entire senate for action, was introduced by Chairman Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, of the naval affairs committee.

Action by President Roosevelt could precede proclamation of a national emergency.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, left, chairman of the Atlanta committee on Baptist alliance, and Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention, right, were on hand to greet Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, of London, England, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, as he arrived at the Terminal station yesterday for a visit in Atlanta. He plans to make preparations for the meeting of the Baptist World Alliance here in July of next year.

ANGLO-AMERICAN POKER DEBT IS DUD

Brice Releases Briton From $150,000 'Witch.'

LOS ANGELES, May 6.—(AP)—The controversy between Harry Clifton, wealthy Englishman, and Lew Brice, brother of Fanny Brice, over a $150,000 poker debt officially ended today in superior court, but there was still much mourning.

"It seems Americans just can't collect money from the English," lamented Brice. "Look at those war debts."

Brice won $150,000 from Clifton in a stud poker session, and Clifton moved to stop payment on two checks he gave the victor on the ground such type of poker is illegal in California.

Clifton's attorney, Jerry Giesler, today informed Superior Judge Wilson the matter "had been settled satisfactorily" out of court, that Brice had signed a release of the checks to Clifton.

So Judge Wilson dismissed proceedings.

EGAN SEWAGE PLANT WORK TO BE EXPEDITED

Work will be started on the Egan sewage disposal plant within the next 60 days if necessary property rights along the feeder lines can be obtained, W. A. Hamsell, WPA engineer, announced yesterday.

Fulton county is to contribute $30,000 toward the cost of the project and College Park and Hapeville are to contribute $8,500 each with labor and machinery to be furnished by the WPA. The plant will serve about 1,500 homes.

NINE MORE LIQUOR PERMITS APPROVED

Mayor Hartsfield's approval of nine more applications yesterday brought the total number of licensed whisky retailers in Atlanta to 86.

All but one of the applications passed Monday by city council were approved by the mayor. He vetoed that of Louis Silverman, who operates at the corner of Edgewood avenue and Courtland street. It will be sent back to council.

'Cocktail' Marriage Bubbles Away As Judge Permits Annulment Here

56 Given Divorces in Two-Hour Court Session; Husband Who Wouldn't Take His Wife Out Ordered To Pay $100 for Support of Daughter and Alimony.

A marriage inspired by "too many cocktails" was annulled yesterday in Fulton divorce court when husbands who wouldn't take wives anywhere and wives who "continually nagged" became the object of complaint before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy.

In the space of two hours, Deputy Clerk J. H. Bush had checked off 56 final divorce verdicts as complaining parties stepped from the witness stand and the jury rendered its verdicts.

The "cocktail marriage" was dissolved upon agreement of husband and wife in annulment proceedings in which the husband said they "were intoxicated to such an extent they were incapable of entering a marriage contract."

"We have never lived together since the day we were married, February 10," he said from the witness stand.

As the result of a wife's complaint that her husband "wouldn't take her anywhere and made her life miserable," the husband must pay her $40 a month alimony and provide an additional $60 a month for their seven-year-old daughter, until she is 21 years old, under the court's ruling.

One husband took the stand yesterday and turned the table on the women. He said he wanted a divorce on grounds of cruel treatment.

"She nagged me all the time," he said. "I stood it as long as I could but I soon became a total wreck."

Another husband complained that his wife nagged him, too, and chided him constantly for not bringing a larger weekly pay check.

A young wife seeking her single status again, said she was tired of trying to support her husband, testifying that "both of us have been living on my earnings."

Temperament Is Blamed for Rift Of Actress O'Dea, Pitcher Gomez

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Levy, hearing the separation suit of Actress June O'Dea against her husband, Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, the Yankee baseball pitcher, decided today that both are "highly temperamental people."

He said so after a four-hour conference with attorneys for the couple, held in an effort to settle amicably Miss O'Dea's charges of cruelty and desertion.

"If both Mr. and Mrs. Gomez were of normal temperament," said Justice Levy, "and if each was not in the limelight, the settlement might have been reached."

PROBLEMS TALKED BY TRAVELERS' AID

"One for All, All for One" Principle Lauded.

Problems affecting the work of travelers' aid bureaus and work for transients were discussed yesterday by approximately 75 delegates to the Southeastern Travelers' Aid conference, which opened at the Piedmont hotel for a two-day session.

The principal speaker on the program was Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, president of the National Association for Travelers' Aid and Transient Service, who spoke last night on "The Chain of Service—One for All and All for One."

Two other speakers yesterday included Dr. Robert S. Wilson and John D. Wellman, both staff associates of the national association.

Concluding sessions will include a business discussion in the hotel this morning and a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

LOYALISTS ADVANCE IN PYRENEES SECTOR

Gains Balance Losses to South; Three Villages Captured.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), May 6.—(AP)—Spanish Insurgents advanced on eastern Spain's southern front today while government forces gained high in the Pyrenees mountains on the north.

A government offensive broke through the insurgent left flank in the central Pyrenees, just west of the Andorran frontier, to counterbalance partly the loss of several lines of trenches to General Miguel Aranda's insurgents in the Alcala de Chivert sector on the south.

The mountain offensive got underway yesterday in the angle formed by the Spanish-French-Andorran borders, government commanders reported.

The drive netted the capture of three villages. Insurgent communiques from the front said the trenches captured by Aranda's forces were on the southern side of the Insurgent wedge to the Mediterranean. The operations were carried on in deep mud and driving rain.

HULL, F. D. R., PHILLIPS SHARE SPAIN PLANNING

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(AP)—Entire responsibility for the United States' policy of non-intervention and neutrality toward Spain is shared by President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and former Under-Secretary Phillips, Hull said today.

In a half-hour talk at his press conference, the secretary of state replied to various charges brought recently against the State Department. He permitted reporters to quote him directly, a privilege usually denied them.

"It has been published," he said, "that Judge Moore (special commissioner of the department) while some of us were absent in South America, had conceived and contrived and built up and formulated our policy of non-intervention and neutrality toward Spain. In truth the President and Mr. Phillips and I were entirely responsible for that policy."

S O S—'Mother' Needed To Save Ten Tiny Pups

Ten tiny pups—only 24 hours old—last night pulled pathetically at an eye dropper filled with canned milk as they unknowingly battled for their lives while the mother dog lay a few feet away ill with dysentery.

They are very fine puppies, Llewellyn setters, the first pups of a 28-month-old dog.

As the puppies were being kept alive with the eye dropper feeding, George Kamps, of 1260 Briarcliff (where the dogs are housed) was seeking a foster mother for them. If one can be found today, a dog who has had pups within the past week, he believes the 10 little bird dogs can be saved. His telephone is HerMock 2171.

Taxpayers Save By Paying Early

Many Atlanta taxpayers are taking advantage of a two per cent discount by paying their entire tax bills before May 15, according to Charles L. Mathews, chief deputy in the office of Tax Collector R. A. McMurtry. Approximately $268,000 had been paid yesterday, Mathews revealed. Only $28,000 was paid on the first collection day Monday, but the total for Thursday was $95,000. Bills were mailed during the week end.

Joan Crawford Signs $1,500,000 M.G.M. Contract

HOLLYWOOD, May 6.—(AP)—Joan Crawford has signed a straight five-year contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, M. C. Levee, her representative, said today.

It is understood the deal involves $1,500,000. The studio confirmed the signing. Such a contract, without the usual yearly options, is unusual in Hollywood. It permits the star to take at least two years off to appear on the stage, and the time off will be added to the length of the contract, Levee said. Miss Crawford has been with M.G.M. for 13 years.

An unofficial but authoritative source said the studio wanted to sign her for only one more year, at $150,000 a picture. She is said to have been getting $125,000.

SPEEDY FIELD OF TEN AWAITS 64TH DERBY

Gridders Clad in 14th Century Togs Play for Hitler at Florence

LONDON, England.—(By Mail.)—While "Der Fuehrer" is paying his visit to "Il Duce" in Italy, one of the calling places will be at Florence. And there will be played, for the entertainment of Der Fuehrer, a football game of ancient Florence, with the players being clad in fourteenth century uniforms, or costumes.

The Italians, in the usually assertive manner of the Fascists, announce that the Florentine football of the fourteenth century is the ancestor of modern football.

"The Greeks, of course, were playing a game of football called 'harpaston' several centuries before the Florentine footballers went forth on the field. The Romans are supposed to have brought football to England about 45 B. C. I am at a loss to understand why Il Duce has overlooked this little angle.

Meanwhile the Irish, and I am inclined to believe them, assert they were playing football at least 2,000 years ago. They say they used, when there was no ball handy, the skull of a Roman or an Englishman, the Irish of those days not being particular people in that respect.

At any rate, when the teams line up at Florence, Ill Doo-shay is to say to Der Fuehrer:

"See there, Adolf. That is where the world gets its football. The playing fields of Eton really had their origin in Florence."

And Adolf can say no less than "Sieg Heil."

There have been times when Mr. William Alexander believed in reincarnation. He thought, often, that some of the Roman football players had come back as students at Georgia Tech and were wearing their suits of armor while playing at running guard. They moved like it.

THE "AUSSIES" ARRIVE.

I went down to the Waterloo station to see the Australian cricket team arrive in London. There was a terrific crowd there, with movies going and camera guns flashing and much shoving and pushing.

The Australians are supposed to be the finest cricket team in the world and the English are doing their best to lull them into overconfidence by daily articles in which an Australian victory by an overwhelming score is predicted.

While I am about to take off for a small Irish village in the County Donegal, I hope to see some of the Australian games. They have two southpaw bowlers and I want to see them in action.

AND INCIDENTALLY.

Incidentally, I hope announcement of the trip to Ireland will be noted by the several who have written to ask for articles from Ireland. And if there be any with relatives or friends in the neighborhood of Castlefinn, County Donegal, Irish Free State, I will try to look them up. That is the land of the Gaelic and if your correspondent is no more successful with it than with Norwegian, Swedish and Danish, or French, there will be very little conversation.

I think it is from the County Donegal that the ancestors of Mr. Leo Farrell, The Constitution's political expert, came to America. I am going to try and locate them for Mr. Farrell.

The city of Castlefinn is a small one up in the far north of Ireland and there is not even a movie in the town. I think it will be good and cold and quiet and there will be an opportunity to sit around a wood fire and wear old sweaters and take walks in the mountains and go to bed at 8:30 o'clock each night. It has an appeal.

THE STRONGEST MAN.

An Irishman who works for an Irish paper on Fleet street has been telling me about North Ireland. It seems in the neighborhood of Castlefinn there is the strongest man in the world. He can take himself by the ear with his right hand and lift himself off the ground. That is real strength, as one may determine by the simple expedient of trying.

There is a former Atlantan living in Castlefinn but she is to be saved for a special story with pictures. All of which is for the not-too-distant future.

There is another story about a strong man in the County Donegal. He was engaged during the late war in unloading a ship in Turkey, where he was with the Irish troops. The ship was loaded with large anvils to be used in the repair shops.

He was walking off the gangway with an anvil under each arm when he fell off. His companions saw him disappear and then emerge to the surface. He disappeared again and came up, spouting water. He went down for the third time and when he came up again he shouted:

"If some of ye do not help me with these anvils I am going to let them go."

I am going to look him up, too.

Meanwhile, may I take this opportunity to thank those who have written the many appreciated letters. Perhaps from the County Donegal there may be time to answer them.

CRACKERS LOSE TO PELICANS, 3-0

Beckman and Durham Hurl Twin Bill for Atlanta Today.

By ROY WHITE.
Atlanta's Crackers outlast New Orleans, six to four, Friday night, but the Pelicans bunched their singles in the fifth and sixth innings and beat the Crackers, 3 to 0, before a ladies' night crowd of some 6,000 spectators, at Ponce de Leon park.

A double-header will be played this afternoon starting at 2 o'clock to make up for Thursday's rained out game. Bill Beckman and Bobby Durham are slated to pitch the twin bill.

Crackers, announced Friday night that results of the Kentucky Derby will be flashed over the loud-speaker as soon as the race is run, should the second game still be in progress at Derby time.

LOSE MANAGER.

Not only did the Crackers lose the ball game, but they lost the services of Manager Paul Richards for several days at least. Richards was hit in the head by Charlie George's bat, as the Pelican catcher struck out in the sixth inning. Manager Richards held to the ball and then fell to the ground. He walked to the dugout and his injury was not serious. He had a cut over his left ear.

Ralph Buxton, the young right-hander optioned to the Crackers by the Athletics, limited the Birds to four singles. A couple of walks proved costly to Buxton. He struck out six batters.

Limiting the Pelicans to a single walk in four innings, the visitors broke through in the fifth and scored a run. Young walked and went to second when Birds threw low to first on Woodard's grounder. Marshall fled out, Overman singled to left, scoring Young.

In the sixth, Scalzi singled and went to second on Shilling's sacrifice. Carlyle singled, sending Shilling to third. Young walked, filling the bases. George struck out. Woodard singled to left, scoring Young.

The Big Two Minutes

64th Kentucky Derby Looks Like Two-Horse Race, and Is Attracting 60,000 People; No Other Sports Spectacle Like It.

By Jack Troy

CHURCHILL DOWNS, LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—At last count there were 12 turf experts and this correspondent, making a total of 13, favoring the chances of Bull Lea to gallop home first in the 64th renewal of the Kentucky Derby tomorrow.

Sixteen writers had clambered aboard Fighting Fox. Here and there were fellows who wanted to be different. One liked Dauber's chances. Another favored The Chief, stablemate of the lamented story-book horse, Stagehand.

This correspondent's original choice for the Derby was Bull Lea and there is no good reason to get off the handsome son of Bull Dog at this late date.

By a strange coincidence, Buck Weaver, writer for the Louisville Times, and this writer have come up with identical selections.

They are: Bull Lea, first; Fighting Fox, second; The Chief, third, and Lawrin, fourth.

A heavy play is going Bull Lea's way. The odds have been beaten down to 3 to 1 on the Kentucky bred thoroughbred. He is almost equally liked now with Fighting Fox, which is expected to go postward this late date.

The majority of writers view tomorrow's classic as a two-horse race for the $50,000 cash prize and the gold cup. There is no prospect of anything but a very fast track.

And it is very gratifying to find so many new supporters of Bull Lea. I sincerely hope there aren't too many others switching to him before the big race. He might not be able to handle all that weight.

No less than a week ago the talk was all of Stagehand and of Fighting Fox, the brilliant son of Sir Gallahad III. After the Derby trial, Stagehand lost considerable caste and finally the truth came out—the horse was tired. Illness and a sudden withdrawal followed.

It came as no great shock to one who, in the first place, had selected the winter book favorite to finish third. It may be a mistake, but this writer has substituted The Chief in his place. Lawrin may prove worthy of the spot, or, perhaps, Menow.

The 10-horse field augurs a spectacular race. While it is the smallest field in more than a decade, it is considered one of the best balanced.

There are numerous horsemen who believe that any one of six entries might cup the cup. But the big majority, as said, have put it down as two-horse affair—Fighting Fox and Bull Lea.

Side by Side
At the Post.

Post positions announced today had Fighting Fox in the fifth slot and Bull Lea next door in sixth. All things are approximately equal in this respect.

Frank Kearns, Celtic trainer of Bull Lea, will be satisfied if the Bull is running third or fourth at the head of the lane.

"We'll be tough to beat from there on in," he said. He is satisfied that Bull Lea can take care of himself in the home stretch.

Another thing supporters of Bull Lea like is that, as a two-year-old, Warren Wright's Brown Beauty defeated Fighting Fox two out of three times.

GILLESPIE WINS IN ITHACA MEET

ITHACA, N. Y., May 6.—(P)—Four seeded players, paced by the defending champion, William Umstaedter, of Milburn, N. J., high, reached the semi-finals of the Cornell interscholastic tennis tournament today.

Umstaedter lost only one game up to the quarter finals, then had a stiff struggle before he could eliminate Russell Strayer, of Ridgewood, N. J., 6-1, 6-4. His opponent tomorrow morning will be Don Buffington of Atlanta, Ga., and Scarborough (N. Y.) school. Another Scarborough player, William Gillespie, also of Atlanta, fifth ranking junior player in the United States, will face George Kraft, of New York.

Gillespie played brilliantly, losing only five games in three matches. He defeated Robert DeTor, Syracuse Central, 6-0, 6-2; Jerome Libenthal, Erasmus Hall, Brooklyn, 6-0, 6-1, and Moylan Hull, Upper Darby, Pa., 6-1, 6-1. Kraft, seeded fifth, whipped George Himadi, of Ridgewood, 6-3, 6-3, in his quarter final while Buffington scored a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Warren D'Alessandro, of Port Richmond High, Staten Island. D'Alessandro had upset the seeded Albert McGuire Jr., of Newark, N. J., Academy, in the second round.

MOORE, BOBBITT IN SEMI-FINALS

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—(P)—Two dark horses rode high, wide and handsome through seeded opposition today to gain the semi-finals of the annual Southeastern conference tournament along with top-ranked Russell Bobbitt, of Georgia Tech, and Sewanee's Alex Guerry Jr., awarded fourth position in the draw.

The dope setters were Bobbitt's teammate, hard-hitting Bill Moore, and cazy Jack Bushman, of Louisiana State.

Moore blasted Tulane's second-seeded Billy Westerfield out in their quarter-final engagement, 6-3, 6-2, and third seeded Joe Abrams, also of Tulane, fell victim to the steady play of Bushman, 6-4, 8-10, 6-4.

Bobbitt advanced with an easy 6-1, 6-2 victory over Guy Cheng, of Tulane, while Guerry was eliminating Donald Doyle, of Tulane, 7-5, 6-2.

In tomorrow morning's semi-final matches Bobbitt will meet Bushman and Moore will engage Guerry.

Johnny Noel, a middle distance runner, is another of Vandy's luminaries and should give Charles Belcher plenty of competition.

Fox and Bull Lea Favored in Derby

Many Experts Predict Fast Field Will Make for Record Time; Purse Is $57,575.

By ALAN GOULD.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—(P)—One of the smallest but fastest Kentucky Derby fields since war days will respond to the roar of the crowd at historic Churchill Downs late tomorrow afternoon in the pulse-quickenng whirl that has become America's most spectacular three-year-old horse race and a national sporting institution.

The names of 10 thoroughbreds, with the ill-fated and erstwhile favored Stagehand conspicuously missing, were dropped in the entry box today at the track. They comprised nine colts and one gelding.

If all 10 go to the post at approximately 5:30 p. m. (C. D. T.) tomorrow while the massed bands play "My Old Kentucky Home," the field will be the smallest since Ben Block's Morvich led nine rivals to the finish in 1922 and the race will carry a gross value of $57,575.

TWIN FAVORITES.
The twin favorites among experts and the public, William Woodward's Fighting Fox and Warren Wright's Bull Lea, may face no more than a half dozen rivals at the barrier. Some doubts existed whether Co-Sport, only gelding entered, or Mountain Ridge, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' 50-1 shot, would run. Both are considered certain withdrawals if the weather takes an unexpected turn for the worse and produces heavy going.

Fighting Fox ruled the 5-2 choice in most betting, with Bull Lea well supported at 3 to 1. Two-year-old rivals last year, when Bull Lea beat the Fox twice in three attempts, these two colts figured to fight it out in the stretch. There seemed sufficient class otherwise in the field, however, to support the idea of a reasonably wide open race.

The prospects of a fast pace from the start, with such speedy colts as Lawrin, Menow and The Chief to force matters, prompted many experts to forecast a record race. The Derby mark of 2:01 4-5 for the mile and a quarter was set in 1931 by Twenty Grand. Last year War Admiral's winning time, 2:03 1-5, was second fastest in history.

Regardless of the effects of the "recession" upwards of $1,000,000 will be wagered through the mutual machines tomorrow. Last year the aggregate amount bet on Derby day was $1,535,104, with $585,106 on the Derby alone, more than double the figures for the "depression" lows of 1933.

Biggest betting day in Derby history was in 1926, when the mutual "handle" passed the $2,000,000 mark.

Doubts as to Bull Lea's ability to go the route, because of the lack of staying qualities in most offspring of Bulldog, seem to have been dissipated by the colt's impressive spring performances. Bull Lea set two track records recently at Keeneland, doing 1 1-4 miles in 1:44 and 1 1-8 in 1:49 3-8.

On the outside looking in was the quickly-forgotten Stagehand, with which the one-time famous rider, Earl Sande, had hoped to achieve further triumph as the colt's trainer. Sande and his employer, Maxwell Howard, still think they have a chance with The Chief but it's a remote one. Meantime Stagehand, though missing, has been a factor in the race.

Other schools which score were Savannah with 4 1-2, a Monroe Aggies with 4. Commercial failed to place in any event. Four new records were set up all of them by Lanier men—the Poets' squad ran roughshod over the field.

McCowan, of Lanier, will meet Rice, of Tech High, tomorrow in the G. I. A. A. tennis single championship match, and Tech Boys' High will compete for the doubles crown.

MR. ZERO

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

INSTALLMENT XXVIII

The inspector made for the door to call Algy, but stopped with his hand on it. Mr. Brook was speaking.

"Perhaps we had better see Mr. Brewster first. Mr. Lushington will be wanting to get back to town. If you have no objection, Colonel Anstruther—"

Colonel Anstruther had no objection, and presently Mr. Brewster came in.

Before the door was shut Dr. Hammond was up and taking his leave.

"I'd like to stay, but I've got to go. Twins at Railing, and a broken leg at Oldmeadow. What a life!"

When he was gone Colonel Anstruther turned to Mr. Brewster. "We won't keep you long, but we think you may be able to help us."

"Anything I can do," Mr. Brewster registered an earnest desire to be helpful.

"Naturally. I believe you and Mr. Somers left the drawing room together after tea."

"Yes, Colonel Anstruther, we did."

"Did you happen to notice the time?"

"Oh, yes—I glanced at my watch. It was 20 minutes past five."

"Can you tell us what happened after you left the room?" Colonel Anstruther's tone was testy.

"Yes, I can, Colonel Anstruther. Mr. Somers and I came out of the drawing room together and when we got about half-way across the hall the butler came running after you left the drawing room."

"We saw the unfortunate man who is the subject of the present inquiry."

"Bless my soul!" said Colonel Anstruther. "Make a note of that, Boyce. Well, that narrows down the time considerably. You saw Sturrock alive at twenty past five, and Williams found him dead at five-and-twenty-to-six. Well, go on, sir. What was he doing?"

"He approached us," said Mr. Brewster, speaking in his precise way, "and he informed Mr. Somers that he was wanted on the telephone."

"What?"

"I will endeavor to give you his exact words. To the best of my recollection he said, speaking to Mr. Somers, 'There's a London call for you, sir. Perhaps you wouldn't mind taking it in my pantry as the gentlemen are using the study.'"

"Go on," said Mr. Brook. "What happened after that?"

"Mr. Somers disappeared in the direction from which the butler had come. I then inquired where it would be convenient for me to wait until Mr. Lushington had finished his conversation with Mr. Brook, and the butler indicated a room he called the parlor."

"Did Sturrock accompany you?"

"No—he merely indicated the room."

"You went there?"

"I did, and remained there until about a quarter to six, when I thought I had really better make sure that Mr. Lushington was still engaged. I found the house in a turmoil, and was informed that the butler had shot himself."

"That," said Mr. Brook, "it by no means certain."

"Indeed?" Mr. Brewster expressed a mild surprise.

"The parlor is some way off," said Colonel Anstruther. "Did you see anyone at all during the time you were there?"

"Oh, hear anything? You didn't hear the shot?"

JUST NUTS

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle.

"Oh, no, sir."

"Well, I think that's all—eh, Mr. Brook? I don't think we need keep you any longer, Mr. Brewster, and I don't think we need detain Mr. Lushington if he wants to be off. Boyce, will you ask Mr. Somers to come here."

Algy came into the room somewhat heartened by the fact that Monty had just clapped him on the shoulder and bidden him brace up.

He took the chair which Mr. Brewster had vacated, but experienced none of his desire to be helpful. He felt an extraordinary distaste for the whole thing, an extraordinary mental fatigue.

Through this fatigue came the conviction that the hostility he had encountered before had sensibly increased, and that they were all watching him as if they expected something to happen. He didn't know what.

Colonel Anstruther led off with the same question as before.

"You left the drawing room with Mr. Brewster. Did you notice the time?"

"Brewster did," said Algy. "He said it was twenty past five."

"Mr. Brook corroborates that. He went in as you came out, and he looked at the clock in the hall. Now, Mr. Somers, will you tell us just what happened after you left the room?"

"Yes," said Algy. "Sturrock came through the door beyond the dining room and said I was wanted on the telephone. He said it was a trunk call and would I mind taking it in the pantry. I went through and took off the receiver. There was no one on the line. I tried to get the exchange, but they seemed to be asleep. When I did get them they said they didn't know anything about a trunk call. I hung up and came back into the hall."

"Did Sturrock come back into the pantry while you were at the telephone?"

"And he wasn't in the hall when you got back there?"

"Not a sign of him."

"What did you do next, Mr. Somers?"

"I went upstairs to my room and stayed there until I heard a commotion in the house. Then I came down, and someone, one of the footmen, told me Sturrock had shot himself."

"How long were you in your room?" said Colonel Anstruther.

"I couldn't say exactly, sir—about ten minutes."

There was a pause.

Then the chief constable said, "Listen to me, Mr. Somers. The theory that this man Sturrock committed suicide is not borne out by the medical evidence and it is our business to find out who shot him. Now here are the facts. Sir Francis Colesborough owned a pair of pistols. He kept one of them in that drawer—second on the right, wasn't it, Boyce—and there is no evidence as to where he kept the other. Sir Francis was shot with one of the pair, and Sturrock with the other. Now, supposing the second pistol to have been in that drawer, who had access to it before the police arrived last night?"

"A good many people, I should say, sir."

"Yourself among them. You agree to that?"

"I, in common with the entire household, had access to a drawer in which you suppose the second pistol may have been. There is no proof that it was there. I certainly never set eyes upon it myself."

Colonel Anstruther said, "Tcha! Since Sturrock was shot with this pistol, it is obvious that it was on the premises, and it was on it."

Algy shook his head.

"I don't admit any of that," he said.

Colonel Anstruther's color deepened.

"Perhaps you will allow me to continue," Sturrock was shot between twenty-one and twenty-two minutes past five, when you and Mr. Brewster encountered him in that hall, and five-and-twenty to six, when William found him dead and gave the alarm. During that time Mr. Brook was with the home secretary in the drawing room. Mr. Paterson, myself, and the inspector were in here. Mr. Brewster was in the parlor, Lady Colesborough in her own room with Miss Hardwicke, who says she left her to go to her bedroom."

"Quite so," said Mr. Brook dryly.

"When then, he would have to get in touch with him. If he was shot because he was blackmailing Mr. Zero, it was because he did get in touch with him. Well, how did he do it? Would he risk using the telephone here, or would he think Railing safer? Why did he go to Railing anyhow? He was back again in time to bring in tea, you know. He told me he would be catching a bus at something after four. Don't you think there must have been something special to take him in to Railing if he was only going to be there for a little over half an hour?"

Continued Monday.

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

Today I'm going to tell you how I made a compass recently—in little compasses, all pointing northward but each with one end of the needle resting on the bottom of the basin.

What I wanted was a homemade compass which would really float, so I went to a nearby field and obtained a piece of long grass with a dry stalk. Returning indoors, I magnetized another needle with my magnet, and pushed it into a piece of the stalk about an inch and a half long.

The result was a floating compass needle. The needle is still floating and still pointing northward. More than once, I have turned it, but each time it has adjusted itself, the same end going back to a north-pointing position.

I hope you will find time to make tests of this kind. You might use a short straw instead of a grass stalk to hold your needle. If you succeed, you will have made the earliest known kind of compass—a floating magnetic needle.

With the rest of the match-

WHEAT CAN AID BY STOCKS RALLY

UPTURN IN SECURITIES CAUSES MARKET TO OVERCOME EARLY DECLINE.

CHICAGO, May 6.—(P)—Aided by upturns of securities, the wheat market rallied late today, and more than overcame an earlier fall of a cent a bushel.

Until stimulated by securities, the wheat trade was largely a drifting affair, with May liquidation, slow export business and favorable crop reports tending to pull values down.

European takings of 500,000 bushels lent firmness to the corn market. Receipts here continued large, 524 cars, but demand was active, with prospects that Chicago shipments would establish a high record outside April.

Rye was sympathetic with corn. Rye was neglected.

Provisions showed irregularity. Eastern commission houses bought, and packing interests sold.

Weather Outlook For Cotton States.

Public Utility Stocks' Recovery Buoyed Sentiment of Speculators

Bond Market Also Shows Brighter Tone, Reports George Hughes.

By GEORGE T. HUGHES.

(Copyright, 1938, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, May 6.—The two end-of-the-week developments which heartened the financial district the most were the recovery in the public utility stocks and the hardening in the high-grade bond market, in which not only the utilities but the top-flight rails participated.

The demonstration in the utility shares was founded on Washington advice to the effect that a settlement of the difficulties between the TVA and the Commonwealth & Southern was believed to be near. That report was fathered by Arthur Krock, of the New York Times, and was generally credited. However, cautious confirmation was to be had from other sources and the result was a broad buying movement in the long neglected light and power shares.

As a matter of fact, the utilities for a number of weeks have been showing signs of a sold-out condition. On the April rally they made a better showing than either of the other two groups and came nearer to the February peak, but always on small volume.

What has been holding the utilities back has been fear of government competition rather than the turn in the utility stocks, for it is a reflection of the brighter prospects for the capital market generally. The Street has been impressed, first, with the new willingness of large corporations to offer new issues, and second, with the reception accorded them by investors.

The United States Steel Corporation was the leader with its announcement of a $100,000,000 debenture bond issue, closely followed by the announcement of the Edison Electric Institute showing a drop in production compared with a year ago for a long period of weeks.

The better tone in the bond market is of course of more fundamental significance than the turn in the utility stocks, for it is a reflection of the brighter prospects for the capital market generally. The Street has been impressed, first, with the new willingness of large corporations to offer new issues, and second, with the reception accorded them by investors.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

As the treacherous Jeff Biggers struck him from behind, Tarzan's knees buckled. He and Mary tumbled to the ground. Before they could rise, the warriors were upon them. The spearmen struggled heroically to free himself, but the warriors held him pinioned.

When they had bound his wrists with strong grass rope, they commanded him to rise. Then the procession was resumed, with the warriors shouting in delight because they had captured Tarzan the Demon. They gave Jeff due credit, and called him comrade.

Jeff was pleased with the whole affair. Now he could claim the emeralds from Kagundo as his reward, and he would demand, too, that Mary be spared. "Don't worry," he called to the girl; "we'll have our honeymoon yet." "I prefer death," Mary answered coolly.

The girl turned sadly to Tarzan. "I'm grateful to you for trying to save me. But now they'll kill you, too." Tarzan smiled and shrugged. "For years I've played a game with death. A thousand times I've won. Should I begrudge him his single victory?"

2 BIDS CANCELLED TO BRITISH COURT

Lord Chamberlain Withdraws Invitations.

LONDON, May 6.—(P)—The Lord Chamberlain today cancelled invitations for presentation at court of two New Zealand-born women now living in England.

The action was taken, it was understood, because too much publicity had attended the forthcoming presentation of the women, Mrs. William Webster, of Liverpool, and Miss Kathleen O'Brien, of Manchester.

The decision was the second society sensation in connection with 1938 royal courts which began May 11. The first was an announcement by United States Ambassador Kennedy that presentation of American women would be confined to families of American officials in England and American women living here.

GOVERNOR CANDIDATE PAYS BACK POLL TAXES

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 6.—(P)—Colonel E. S. Fuller, who has announced intention of qualifying as a candidate for Governor as head of the George Washington party, today held poll tax receipts for 13 years of delinquent levies.

He said he had paid taxes for 1935 and 1936, but because he left the state and resided in Florida during the boom period he had not paid taxes for that time.

Election officials declined to permit him to register as a candidate, however, until he produced receipts for the back levies or paid them. Among the years for which he paid were 1910, 1911 and 1912. He first moved to Savannah to practice law in 1913.

FATHER, 3 OTHERS SLAIN.

ELVERUM, Norway, May 6.—(P)—Four persons were killed and three wounded today by a 28-year-old farmer's son, Bjorn Brakerud, before he was slain by police. The killed included the slayer's father and the local sheriff. Police said Brakerud was insane.

Revision of Georgia's Libel Laws Urged by Sutlive in Press Talk

Savannah Editor and Others Address State High School Group; Awards Are Made for Best Student Publications of Year.

ATHENS, Ga., May 6.—(P)—Revision of Georgia's libel laws was urged today by W. G. Sutlive, editor of the Savannah Press.

Speaking at the annual session of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association, the Savannah Editor said the laws were "unnecessarily restrictive."

He told the students of journalism to write simply and plainly, consider their jobs as a partnership with the public, and to keep in mind the seriousness of such a responsibility.

Dean Walter D. Coking, of the University of Georgia, told the group the principle of a free press should be more firmly instilled in the country. He said discernment and judgment are needed in publishing newspapers, adding:

"These are important lessons which the adult journalists of the country seem not to have fully learned."

Publish the Truth.

Professor Robert L. McWhorter, of the Lumpkin Law school, said the press would continue to have a free reign if only the truth concerning government, religion or individuals, is published.

McWhorter said he believed newspapers should have the right to rely upon truthfulness of news furnished them by standard news distributing agencies. Under the present statutes, he said a newspaper is subject to the libel law whenever it prints anything false concerning an individual, regardless of the source.

Silver loving cups awarded by the Athens Banner-Herald and scholarships and certificates of distinction awarded by the association were presented in the university chapel.

Other Speakers.

Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the university; W. F. Caldwell, news editor, southern division, the Associated Press and Jere N. Moore, president of the Georgia Press Association and editor of the Milledgeville Union-Record, were other speakers at today's session.

In presenting the Banner-Herald cups, E. B. Braswell, publisher,

Revision of Georgia's Libel Laws Urged by Sutlive in Press Talk

Savannah Editor and Others Address State High School Group; Awards Are Made for Best Student Publications of Year.

ATHENS, Ga., May 6.—(P)—Revision of Georgia's libel laws was urged today by W. G. Sutlive, editor of the Savannah Press.

Speaking at the annual session of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association, the Savannah Editor said the laws were "unnecessarily restrictive."

He told the students of journalism to write simply and plainly, consider their jobs as a partnership with the public, and to keep in mind the seriousness of such a responsibility.

Dean Walter D. Coking, of the University of Georgia, told the group the principle of a free press should be more firmly instilled in the country. He said discernment and judgment are needed in publishing newspapers, adding:

"These are important lessons which the adult journalists of the country seem not to have fully learned."

Publish the Truth.

Professor Robert L. McWhorter, of the Lumpkin Law school, said the press would continue to have a free reign if only the truth concerning government, religion or individuals, is published.

McWhorter said he believed newspapers should have the right to rely upon truthfulness of news furnished them by standard news distributing agencies. Under the present statutes, he said a newspaper is subject to the libel law whenever it prints anything false concerning an individual, regardless of the source.

Silver loving cups awarded by the Athens Banner-Herald and scholarships and certificates of distinction awarded by the association were presented in the university chapel.

Other Speakers.

Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the university; W. F. Caldwell, news editor, southern division, the Associated Press and Jere N. Moore, president of the Georgia Press Association and editor of the Milledgeville Union-Record, were other speakers at today's session.
